X-Men hologram in 'Advance Comics'

Capital City Distribution President Milton Griepp has announced that Advance Comics #37, shipping in November, will come bagged with a limited X-Men hologram promo card. This promo card will be an advance look at one of the hologram cards to be included in Impel's X-Men Cards, which will ship in January. All of the cards in the X-Men series, including the holograms, will feature art by Jim Lee.

According to Griepp, "this joint promotion by Impel and Capital will draw consumer and trade attention to the most important collectible features of the X-Men card series coming in January." These features, he said, are:

- Holograms: "The first two Impel Marvel card series have been red hot, and the hottest thing about them has been the hologram 'chase' cards included in both series. These individual holograms are being reported at prices of up to $8 each."
- Jim Lee: "Lee's art on Marvel's new X-Men comic helped drive the first issue to record sales levels. Lee is not only doing the art for the entire X-Men card series, but for the holograms, as well.
- The connection to X-Men and X-Force: "Marvel has dominated the summer of 1991 in comics stores with two blockbuster new titles in the X-Men family — X-Force and X-Men. The fact that Lee is doing this X-Men card series ties its release to the biggest comic book in the history of comics. And the bagging of the hologram card with Advance Comics is reminiscent of the delivery system used for the X-Force cards with X-Force #1 (the second biggest release in the history of comics)."

Promo cards have been used to an increasing degree by card companies over the last two years to promote upcoming releases. There has been a great deal of collector interest in promo cards.

Griepp said, "To our knowledge, this is the first use of a hologram promo card to promote an upcoming card release. The facts that holograms are hot, promo cards are hot, X-Men is hot, and Jim Lee is hot mean that these promo cards stand a good chance of achieving substantial collectible value in their own right."

According to Griepp, the hologram promo cards will be bagged with both the trade and consumer editions of Advance Comics #37. "We've had to increase the cost and retail price of the consumer edition of Advance Comics slightly for this issue only to help cover the costs of this promotion," said Griepp, "but we feel certain that the increased promotional and collectible value of this issue will more than make up for the slight additional cost." The cover price for this issue will be $1.95 (instead of the normal $1.25), with a correspondingly higher cost to retailers. The Retailer Orderpak edition of Advance Comics will be sent free with shipments and to all retailers on Capital's mailing list as usual. Advance Comics #37 ships to retailers Oct. 31.

Ted Nomura (artist for Tigers of Terra*) and Ben Dunn (artist for* Ninja High School*) will team for a mini-series uniting their characters. They did not reveal the title. Each artist will draw his respective characters throughout the mini-series, rather than having either artist do an entire issue alone. Nomura has written the story, in which Jeremy Feeple is captured by a Virgonian commander and the Quagmire crew and the* Tigers of Terra team have to rescue him. Each issue will be 32 pages, black-and-white interior, with a full-cover color. There also will be pin-ups and previously unpublished art. The issue is to go on sale in December, retailing at $2.50 ($3.25 in Canada).

King Features wins 'Betty Boop' case

U.S. District Judge Thomas P. Griesa entered judgment totaling more than $100,000 against 34 retailers in the New York-Metropolitan area who were selling unauthorized and counterfeit merchandise featuring the copyrighted character "Betty Boop." The judge handed down his decision Aug. 14 in the lawsuit instituted by The Hearst Corporation, King Features Syndicate Division, and Fleischer Studios Inc.

Six of the retailers convicted of selling buttons depicting "Betty Boop" in a lewd manner had judgments of $10,000 each entered against them. In addition, the defendants were ordered to pay the attorneys' fees of King Features and Fleischer Studios and were enjoined from ever selling counterfeit "Betty Boop" merchandise again.

"Hearst is determined to protect its assets," said Joseph F. D'Angelo, president of King Features. "We have and will continue to aggressively pursue infringers, taking legal action whenever or wherever necessary.

"The judgment in this suit will serve as a warning to anyone attempting to counterfeit or sell merchandise featuring unauthorized versions of our copyrighted characters," he continued.

The next voice you hear . . .

Writer Harlan Ellison's voice-acting debut will be on the CBS Saturday-morning TV series Mother Goose & Grimm on Oct. 26, unless the order of the shows is changed.

There is a chance that the order will be changed, but his aural appearance is currently scheduled for show #7. Since the first show of the series was finished within a week of its broadcast, there is a chance the sequence will be changed.

In the episode, Ellison is the voice of one of two magic mirrors.

Don Rosa takes Uncle Scrooge back to Xanadu

Don Rosa returns to Uncle Scrooge and Scrooge, Donald, and the kids "Return to Xanadu" in a two-part story running in Uncle Scrooge #261 and #262.

The following pages are taken from the second part of the story: Donald, Scrooge, Huey, Dewey, and Louie have returned to the lost valley of Tralla-La, in quest of the rest of the treasure of Genghis Khan. (This story is a sequel to two stories written and drawn by Carl Barks — "The Lost Crown of Genghis Khan" and "Tralla-La.") Scrooge discovers that the crown of Genghis Khan, which he recovered from the Abominable Snowman in an earlier adventure, holds a clue to the entire treasure of the ancient Mongol empire.

Unfortunately, his quest for the treasure puts the entire valley of Tralla-La in mortal danger.

(Uncle Scrooge continues on Page 6)

Book Guide

The Aeneid of Virgil, translated by Edward McCrorie. Donald M. Grant, Publisher, $40 for a 500-copy limited edition.* Reviewed by Robert Coulson.

This is a new translation, but since I never read any of the others, I can't make comparisons. I was impressed by the clarity of the translation; the text is thoroughly modern, with no fanciful language to suggest antiquity. It's set as a poem but reads more like a novel.

"I lay on my wretched bed. Deep and pleasurable stillness covered my body, resembling the stillness of dead men."

The plot isn't quite as familiar as The Iliad or The Odyssey and it might be new to anyone who didn't get it in Latin class. It takes the protagonist, Aeneas, from the fall of Troy through wanderings in the Mediterranean to the founding of Rome by his son, Romulus, and has been the basis for several fantasy novels. (I assume the Romans, as relative newcomers, were looking for a myth to put them on an antiquity equal to the Greeks, and Virgil gave them one.)

There's plenty of action and a goodly amount of interference from various gods. None of the gods seem very bright; one theory is that the story-teller rang them in to allow their capriciousness to explain historical events without making the ancestors of the listeners sound stupid.

It's a beautiful book. Artists Luis Ferreira provides full-color and black-and-white illustrations which seem fitting for the story. The book is signed by the translator and the artist.

A free 48-page catalog listing all The Spirit comics, Will Eisner graphic novels and many other items is available from Kitchen Sink Press, No. 2 Swamp Road, Princeton, WI 54968 or FAX (414) 295-6878.

Editorial

By Don and Maggie Thompson

An industry professional called the other day to ask whether there was some way to bring up a fact of life in the comics direct market: When a title "sells out" in the direct market, that doesn't it has "sold through."

In other words, even though it has sold out, it may not be selling. How can this be? When is a sale not a sale?

OK, here are the terms: A title sells out from a publisher, when the publisher has no more copies to sell to distributors to (in turn) sell to stores. But a title sells through when the stores have no more copies to sell to customers.

That's not the same thing. When it sells out, the publisher has sold it to distributors and retailers; when it sells through, it has sold to readers and/or collectors.

On newsstands, a fairly common sell-through is 33% — which means the publisher has to print three copies to sell one. In the direct market, most distributors and shops would like to see a sell-through of 100%; they would like to sell all of what they ordered from the publisher, because (unlike the newsstands) the material they bought was on a non-returnable basis and can't be returned for credit.

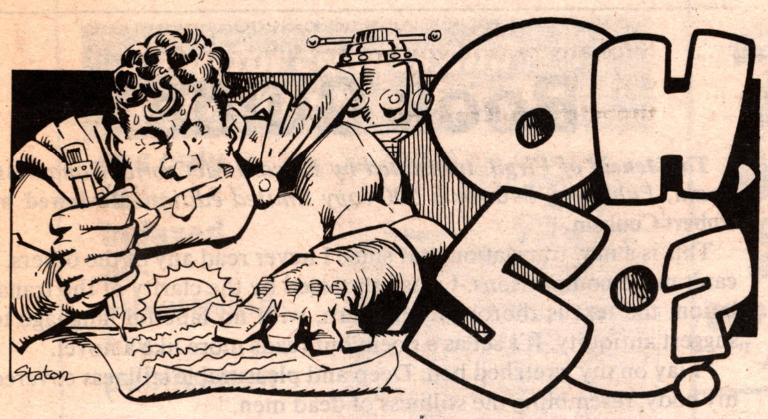
When Spider-Man #1 was released, it had a sell-through of close to 100% — which is to say a few newsstand copies may have gone unsold in a few areas, but basically shelves were stripped of Spider-Man #1 quickly. So it sold out — all 2.35 million copies — and more copies were printed and sold after that.

But how about this summer's X-Force #1? Has it sold through? Or are there still copies left of the issue which held the sales record for the industry for a couple of months? It sold out a print run of something like 3.6 million to shops — but we've heard that many shops still have copies, meaning it may not yet have sold through.

(We know of one retailer who bought so many copies of X-Force #1 that he has been selling his excess to other retailers at cost just to get his money back. Those other retailers are using him as a warehouse so they can order conservatively from him and buy only what they know they can sell.)

With around 7 million copies of the five issues of X-Men #1 scheduled to be printed and distributed about now, the question of sell-through becomes a vital one for the industry. With a nice push from an article in Entertainment Weekly — which may bring more media attention when it is most needed — we hope this sell-out translates to a sell-through. If it doesn't, a lot of shops could be in financial trouble.

As a matter of fact, if a lot of shops over-ordered heavily and lose enough money that they are driven out of business, all of us involved in or interested in the comics field could be in trouble.



Mark Evanier

There are a thousand stories about Carol Kalish. About a fourth of them go something like this. . .

A few years ago, there was a tiny comic-book shop not far from my house. Did I say "tiny"? They'd have had to add a wing onto the place to make it into a Roach Motel. Even that small, the store still represented the life savings of its proprietor, a sweet little comic-book-lover who knew as much about running a comics shop as I do about bisecting atomic particles. The guy had already lost his shirt and was clinging to his boxers. He'd have lost them, too, had not Carol come to town.

I'd known Carol for years. I counted her and Richard Howell as two of my best friends, in or out of comics. One evening while she was visiting Los Angles, sans Richard, I arranged to take her up to the Magic Castle for a little prime rib and prestidigitation. And I asked her, if she had time while she was in town, would she swing by the little comics shop and give the guy there a little encouragement and advice?

She didn't have to do it: She was on her time, not Marvel's. But Carol not only loved comic books, she also loved people who loved comic books. She said yes, of course. And when she walked into that store and saw that retail disaster — well, we were almost late for the Castle. I had to drive over there and practically drag her out, as she launched into her third hour of teaching the comics retailing business to the guy. He followed every word of her advice and — I am convinced — saved his business.

If you knew Carol, you know she didn't do all that so the store could sell 10 more Hulks a month for Marvel. He probably did but that wasn't why she did it. Carol knew how to promote her company's product in a benevolent manner. She not only did worlds of good for Marvel's business ledgers but for its reputation, as well.

And I guess it can't hurt to reveal this now: Back when I was writing Blackhawk for DC and coping with a publicity department that deliberately avoided promoting the comic book in any way, Carol took it upon herself to plant some press materials for a comic book she thought deserved better. Even though she was working for the competition. Small wonder that the business knew that she was a person of integrity who never said, "This is a good comic book" unless she meant it. (I still have fanzine editors and distributors ask me, "How come all the publicity I ever got on Blackhawk came from Marvel?")

Carol cared passionately about the field and the people in it, whether they were Jack Kirby or some kid with a funnybook nook in the local mall. She was an important person who quietly aided the lives and careers of a staggering number of comics people — not just retailers, not just wholesalers, but writers and artists, as well.

I remember one night in Las Vegas — we were both in town for a distributors' convention — when she seemed troubled; so much so that I left the blackjack table and hiked down the Strip with her so we could discuss whatever it was that was bothering her. And it is completely typical of Carol that the problem wasn't hers (directly) but, rather, the career of a writer we both knew. Someone else's problem, in other words.

The guy needed advice and she didn't know what to tell him — and so it had become her problem. We walked from the Frontier, down almost to Bob Stupak's Vegas World, talking out the problem, exploring possible solutions. Carol approached life with a wonderful balance of idealism and pragmatism. Every idea she had was workable to some degree so, in this case, it was merely a matter of talking out the dilemma until Carol had four or five ideas and was able to select the best of them. Which she did.

That was how she operated: Quietly and efficiently and without a lot of "Notice me" gestures. In a world where folks do you one favor and call in markers on it forever, she was a treasure. She helped people because — well, just "because." Reason enough for Carol.

There are a lot of people in comics who owe their success to Carol Kalish, including some who may never know how much she did for them, both as businessperson and patron of the arts. But a lot of us do know — and will never forget. Not soon, not ever.

Minutes ago, I heard the shocking news that we have lost Carol Kalish.

I am at a loss. I think all of us are. How can we measure the void in the comics field that her absence will cause? How can we hope to replace her intelligence, wit, and grace that touched so many of our lives?

Carol was (as I was wont to embarrass her by announcing) the smartest person in the comics field. She came to Marvel back in the dark ages of comics retailing, when the popular wisdom still assumed that comics stores had to be located in dark basements in low-rent districts. She championed the cause of comics retailing and comics retailers (when we were still calling ourselves dealers). While others in her position might have just pushed Marvel product on retailers, she encouraged retailers to upgrade their knowledge and skills so that they could intelligently order both Marvel and other products for good sell-through. Marvel, she would often say, was better served by a healthy comics retailing community than by a market overstocked with comics bought by "dealers" speculating in the "comics futures market."

While most of us were wishing and hoping for a miracle that would bring the general public into our stores searching for X-Men, Carol was setting up a program to allow us to buy cash registers (at cost). When I told her that I agreed with Buddy Saunders' CBG Guest Editorial about the need for a national comics retailer's association, she pointed out that a better first step would be local meetings of retailers which could then grow into a larger body. When the local organization became ERCBRA (now CBRI), we held our first retailer's school. Carol, after giving her (and Marvel's) full support, pointed out that she would prefer to sponsor a qualified guest speaker instead of buying everyone a rubber chicken lunch.

And that is, of course, her legacy. She, almost single-handedly, brought to the field a long-range perspective and stability based on professionalism and clear thinking.

I am sure that others will attest to Carol's unfailing courtesy and willingness to share her vast knowledge and good judgment with all of us. All we had to do was ask. It hurts to know that we'll never be able to ask Carol again.

It is comforting to believe that Carol knew how much we all depended on her. I sure hope we all told her often enough. And I'm glad that I had a chance to thank her again at San Diego this year.

In that converstion Carol mentioned that she felt she was sometimes abrasive with people she worked with. When I asked how she could be successful in a corporate environment if this were true, she pointed out, "I'm right a lot."

I knew Carol for almost as long as I have been in this business. She was smart, tough, honest, aggressive, and very supporting of me and my organization. If she liked an idea she'd help you as much as possible, and if she didn't like what you were doing, she'd tell you that, too.

I considered her a friend and a valued business associate. I sought her opinion on many "non-Marvel"-related items and always respected what she had to say.

Her senseless, untimely death has brought home vividly how fragile our existence really is. It has helped me realize again how important it is to try to do the most with the time you're allotted.

Many people are going to be saying some very nice things about her, because she earned and deserved the respect and admiration of a lot of people. And maybe that's a final lesson from her — to live your life so that those who outlive you will have good things to say about you.

I'm glad I knew Carol, I'm happy for the time we got to spend together, I'm grateful for the things I learned from her, and I'll miss her.

I don't much believe in God. But Carol Kalish died today. So I talked to the God I don't believe in — and I offered him a swap: straight up — me for her. I told Him that I knew it wouldn't be a fair trade, but it was the best I could do.

He didn't take me up on the offer. He never does; God doesn't work that way.

I will miss her terribly. She was clean and bright and pure inside. She lusted after truth. She valued "being right." Whether it was she who was right or somebody else, she didn't care. She just wanted to know how things were.

Carol was strong in the best possible way. She didn't need to belittle others to appear strong by comparison. Her source of strength was herself. She believed in "Carol." So did I.

She was bright, sharp, and analytical. Her mind prowled. Carol understood things the first time. You never had to explain strategic consequences or ramifications to her. She could listen to your idea, grasp the essentials, evaluate the potential, look for flaws, provide suggestions, absorb feedback, suggest improvements, absorb feedback, offer comments, etc. On the fly. Analytical conversation with Carol was like volleying at the net with Martina Navratilova: incredibly fast paced, filled with tension, enormously exhilarating. We only saw each other two or three times a year at trade shows, distributor meetings, the San Diego Comic-Con, and the like. And I probably talked with her once a month or so on the phone. I would always come away smiling, feeling uplifted and energized.

She wasn't very good with people. Not because she didn't try — or didn't want to be — it's just that her gifts were of a different sort. Some people sensed that she wasn't comfortable with them and thought that meant she didn't like them. So they decided not to like her. They didn't understand.

Carol didn't trust people easily or quickly.

It took years of effort to earn her trust. But once she gave it — she gave it unreservedly.

Carol Kalish was a rare and exceptional person. We are all much the poorer for her passing.

Excuse me, please. I need to talk to God again. Maybe just this once . . .

Nancy Trempe

Today I received the kind of phone call that no one wants to get. The voice at the other end of the phone said, "Carol Kalish died this morning."

I am very fortunate, because the last time I saw her I thanked her for everything she had done for me and I told her how much knowing her meant to me. I looked to her for many things — and she never let me down. I respected her as much as I believe it is possible to respect anyone.

This year, at San Diego, Carol agreed to do a presentation to the Comics Unlimited team on her next visit to Los Angeles. About five years ago she came to Hawaiian Gardens and not only spoke to us, but also made emergency repairs to our toilet with chewing gum and a bobby pin. (It held for years!) Our toilet is broken again and so are we. She gave us so much. We will miss her.

John Byrne

Time travel. My favorite science ficion concept. Actually, my favorite fantasy concept. And you know what makes it so much fun? It's not real. And it never will be real. Ever.

Therefore, there are no rules.

True, both Marvel and DC have, on occasion, tried to impose rules on time travel in their relative universes, but they have not really had much effect. Outside these structured, increasingly limiting environments, the sky's the limit.

Take Terminator 2, for instance. John Connor of the future sends a reprogrammed Terminator (hereinafter referred to as "Arnold") back to protect his mother and 10-year-old self from a new and nasty Terminator the bad guys sent. Arnold, Sarah Connor, and young John battle the new Terminator and, ultimately, defeat him. In the process, we learn that the whole future from which this nastiness decends was created by a study of pieces of the Terminator from the first movie (hereinafter "T1"), so, to eliminate the chance that his own circuitry will be used to such a purpose, Arnold sacrifices himself. The truth and justice prevail.

But, some would say, there is a fatal flaw in this, since young John Connor would not even exist if his future self had not, in T1, sent Kyle Reese to protect Sarah and, incidentally, become John's father. Since the future based on the study and development of terminator technol-

Diamond Retailers Awarded Copies Of Illustrator

Clive Barker Books Personalized For Winning Retailers

Three lucky retailers at the Diamond Trade Show were the recipients of personally autographed copies of the Gold Edition of Clive Barker, Illustrator, the coffee table art volume of Barker's paintings, drawings, and illustrations.

"It's an artist's proof rather than a numbered copy, and that's even more collectible. I'd feel guilty if I sold it," says Rich Vitone of Chicago's Variety Bookstores, located at 4602 North Western Avenue.

"The package is great, really nicely put together," Vitone says. "It's not a sketchbook—it's more like a historical overview, really. It's the nicest book of its kind since [Berni Wrightson's] A Look Back." Vitone plans to display the Gold edition when his store has finished remodelling.

"There's a growing interest in this kind of material, and we've reached a lot more people since we started carrying this sort of stuff," says Vitone.

"The book is very good," says Larry Wolfe of Allied Trailers of Florida. "I'm a Clive Barker fan anyway, so I knew it would be. Horror has always been one of the things I've liked since I was a little kid."

Port Richey, FL 34654, does some mail order but primarily works conventions with his stock of comics, science fiction, movie and TV tie-in books. "A lot of comic books fans are into media as well, so I usually do pretty well," he says.

Bob Beshara of Rapid City, South Dakota's Pandora's Books has the softover edition of Clive Barker, Illustrator in stock but says, "I've shoved this one in everybody's face and they're all jealous.

"For my store, it sold very well," he says of Illustrator, though his shop at 429 Kansas City Street, which specializes in "straightforward comics," does bang-up business with the Barker graphic novels. "Somebody said Joe DiMaggio's estate was going to sue," Beshara says of Son of Celluloid's eye-popping cover painting of Marilyn Monroe. "We started selling more of them after that. Nice book—I go for that ultra-violence," he says.

[Page 9 notes that Joltin' Joe is alive and well and living in San Francisco, thus obviating the need for an 'estate' to act on his behalf, and—despite the publisher's sincere desire for an autographed ball—he has never contacted Eclipse.]

Drug Wars Up For Award

Bay Area Reviewers Nominate Marshall Book

Drug Wars: Corruption, Counterinsurgency and Covert Operations in the Third World, Jonathan Marshall's thoroughly documented exposé of how U.S. overseas drug policy promotes drug production, has been nominated for the Bay Area Book Reviewers Award by Elgy Gillespie, editor of the San Francisco Review of Books.

"These are fascinating and frightening views into the real drug wars," Gillespie says, "which are not perhaps the drug war that the public believes are going on. The public probably has a hazy idea of cocaine labs in the jungles of Latin America, but in fact there are cocaine wars being fought on other levels, levels like diplomacy and political policy making—Washington levels in short, and these are the levels that make drug enforcement campaigns just idiotically irrelevent and ineffectual.

"The spread of corruption seems to rise all the way up to members of the government in Latin American countries—and Washington is often keeping these regimes in place, tacitly if not actively," says Gillespie.

Drug Wars, published by Cohan and Cohen and distributed by Eclipse Books, retails for $14.95 in hardcover and is recommended as a companion volume to Eclipse's popular 36-card set of Drug Wars Trading Cards, which retails for $8.95.

THIS IS FIT TO PRINT NUMBER 383: It's been a week since Carol Kalish's death, and i've been thinking about her a lot, and about her partner, Richard Howell, and about the ways in which our paths were intertwined. All week i've been singing a stray line from an old country song by the Carter Family: a link in the chain has been broken, leaving me with a sad and aching heart.

I've been too shaken to try to write of her passing, and wouldn't do so now except that two days ago someone called, innocent, but monstrous in his innocence, and asked if i wasn't "a little glad" because with Carol's death Marvel would lose some of its ruthless efficiency in garnering market share at the expense of smaller outfits like Eclipse.

The question made perfect sense to the man who asked it. He saw a certain business equation. He didn't know our history—the history of an entire group of fans-turned-pros whose decades of friendship, letter writing, and late night phone calls link us in a way we cannot explain to the careerists who've entered the comics industry in recent years. It's a history we've all left largely untold, possibly because we want to look like "serious" grown-ups and not a bunch of fannish kids whose dreams came true.

I first met Carol and Richard in the late 1970s, around the same time i met Dean. A few dozen of us fanzine, apa, and letterhack writers, plus a couple of aspiring artists, hung out together, discussed comics, and planned how we would break into the business. (If you want to know who we were, just compare those old lettercols and zines with today's mastheads and indicias.)

One by one, in our varied ways, we did it: we passed proofreaders' tests, wrote and edited "pro-zines," got hired as assistant editors, self-published our own comics, earned freelance assignments, founded publishing houses, bought suits, received guest passes at cons, and even became corporate stockholders. Along the way some of us got uppity, talked too much about the money we were making, bragged about the autographs we were signing, or backstabbed friends to get ahead—but not Carol. And not Richard.

They were a remarkably bonded couple. Carol, the corporate vice president, and Richard, the freelance artist and peripatetic editor, took all too much crap for their relationship from certain quarters, but, like the couples in the Simon and Kirby romance comics they collected, they learned to ignore the snipers and to trust in each other. And Carol was strong enough to resist being cast into the role of "enemy" to those of her friends who engaged in work that directly countered her work at Marvel.

The last time i saw her was at the San Diego con this past summer. Dean and i were suffering through a typically smoke-filled party and she invited us to join her and Richard in the lobby of their hotel for some quiet drinks.

We met them there and it was like old times; we sat but a few steps away from the café where, freshly hired by Marvel, she'd bought me and my daughter Althaea breakfast on her brand-new expense account. That was years ago—Althaea, now in college, was a little girl then, bouncing in her chair with excitement at being offered all the orange juice she could drink, while i, a news reporter for the Buyer's Guide, feared Carol would get in trouble for feeding us. I needn't have worried.

That long-ago orange juice breakfast and those recent late night drinks, Dean and me promising to spend an evening with Richard and her "next time we go to New York on business"—next month that'll be, as it turns out, and now it's too late—those are the fandom-forged links no career conflicts could ever break. And it is Carol, our friend, not some brilliant executive at Marvel, whom we have now lost.

I shouldn't have written this; it's too sad and too inconclusive. She always did say i was an undisciplined writer.

David Chelsea Publicity Hits Portland Paper

"Stand-Up Poet" Guest Stars In Manhattan Play

David Chelsea, whose love life forms the basis of the autobiographical David Chelsea In Love, has been busy with more than just inking the fourth installment of that soon-to-be released series. The August 19 PDXS, Portland's arts publication, cover-featured David Chelsea and Concrete among other characters in a montage of Portland-based comic books.

"Graphically Yours," by p.b. lowe and Bill Rodden, states that "While the story is laid in comic book fashion—detailed illustrations set out on the page in panels—Chelsea's treatment of mature issues and his use of plot to reveal character make his story read more like a novel with graphics. Indeed, the term graphic novel, which is used almost interchangeably with adult comics, fits Chelsea's work perfectly."

Chelsea has also been busy in New York, where he recently guest-starred in a play written by his sister, Teresa Celsi. El Dorado, subtitled "A History of Hollywood in Five Episodes," was serialized over five weeks, with each particular episode covering a decade. Chelsea appeared in a silent piece, set in the 1920s entitled Party Girl.

Chelsea, who the program describes as a "stand-up poet," says the play would make a good comic book. "There's talk of a revival, but she's gone back to Portland."

David Chelsea In Love saw a theatrical interpretation in 1988. "It was a one-time event. We did it in a bar," Chelsea says. "In the East Village, we hold our performance in a bar instead of in a barn."

David Chelsea In Love #1 will ship by September 20. The black and white comic book, retailing for $3.50, is 48 pages in the 8 1/2 by 11 format.

CORRECTION

Argosy magazine has asked Page 9 to clarify that the "Argosy" referred to in the headline and story on Timothy Truman's current series The Spider is not Argosy magazine but Argosy Communications, Inc., which owns the rights to the pulp hero The Spider.

LETTERS

ogy is, theoretically, blanked out by the events of T2, there is no reason for Kyle to have come back, therefore no pregnancy for Sarah (at least, not by Kyle), therefore no John, no future John. . .

Quite a long line of dominoes goes a-tumbling. Basically, it's the grandfather paradox.

Or not.

Refer to the second paragraph of this letter. In time travel, there are no rules. A writer is required only to be true to whatever circumstance he postulates in order to get his story going. The postulate in T1 was very simple and probably the oldest time-travel concept: an attempt to change the past. One of my all-time favorite comic-book stories is still the one in which Superboy travels back to attempt to save Abraham Lincoln, only to be foiled by the adult Lex Luthor. The postulate there was that the past cannot be changed. I even recall a story I read when I was about 11 or so, somewhere in the vicinity of 1961, which had almost exactly the same theme as the two Terminator movies: changing the past of the future by killing an individual. In that case, if memory serves, a man traveled back to kill the grandfather of a future Hitler.

This is a recurrent theme in time-travel stories. Attempting to alter history, the protagonist finds himself prevented from doing so by deliberate intervention or accidental happenstance or, sometimes, finds himself actually creating the very history he came to alter. Michael Moorcock's "Behold the Man" is a prime example of the latter. On the other hand, many writers have taken the position that the future, unlike the past, is up for grabs. The future, by virtue of the fact that it "hasn't happened yet," can be fiddled with. This is the basic premise of the "Days of Future Past" story Chris and I did in The X-Men, although Chris threw in a line to suggest that the future X-Men were only creating an alternate timeline.

To clearly grasp what I'm driving at here, the best bet would be to visualize time as a length of rope, the various strands which make it up coming together at the point we currently occupy, or "now." The rope which lies behind us, the past, is a permanent thing, tightly woven and unchangeable. But the future is just a bunch of random strands, any one of which could be snipped off or replaced with no effect on the existing rope.

So just where does T2 fit in all this? Just what are the rules governing this particular set of circumstances? James Cameron has clearly opted for the "future hasn't happened yet" scenario. In T1, Kyle says explicitly that he is from "one possible future." This is a familiar conceit in time-travel stories. Our time, the present, and our past, are the only "real" times. Even though the moment from which Kyle was transported was very much his "now," it is not real because we, here at our "now," have not reached it yet. (A similar conceit has the DC Earth containing all the "original" versions of its characters being dubbed "Earth Two.") This is important to T1, since, without it, the whole movie is pointless. There would be no reason to send a Terminator to kill Sarah unless there was a very real chance of doing so. We are made to understand that Sarah is in real danger. That the Terminator could succeed.

In T2, the same gag is tried again, the same danger present, this time focused on young John Connor. Killing Sarah, 10 years after John's birth, would accomplish nothing. But John can be killed. The future can be changed.

But what about the past? Ah, here is where we get to the basic given, the necessary suspension of disbelief in T2. Consider the rope analogy again. T1 belongs to that rope now. It is in our past and therefore immutable. It doesn't matter if the future as represented by the adult John Connor and Kyle Reese is changed. Our past has already happened. Kyle's meeting with and impregnating of Sarah is done. It cannot be undone without unraveling the whole rope back to that point, and that, in this context, is a no-no.

As to the matter of Arnold's severed arm, in which many apparently see T3 potential — or, at the very least, an explanation of why young John didn't simply vanish when Arnold was destroyed — this is no threat. It was the arm of the first Terminator plus a damaged memory chip which precipitated the future of Skynet and the rest. With all the data about the memory chip destroyed — and, if it wasn't destroyed, a lot of T2 was an outright cheat on the viewer — Arnold's arm alone would not be enough to create the bleak future. It's also not needed to generate T3, T4, T5, et cetera, since, as the Dark Horse Terminator series has shown, the Terminator of T1 need not have been the only one sent through. Skynet could have sent a hundred Terminators, randomly spaced, before the time machine was captured.

Hey! T3: Arnold versus Arnold! Over to you, Cameron!

Somewhat belated thanks for the interview with Neil Gaiman. He's certainly one of the best writers in comics now and is even a nice guy as well. What more could you ask? Well, one thing. Does he ever take off those sunglasses? I've seen five, six photos now and he's always wearing them. (I know the pix were taken on different occasions, because the T-shirts kept changing.)

Anyway, I'm looking forward to Violent Cases. And those who've been tracking Good Omens (by Terry Pratchett and Gaiman) might be interested in knowing that it came in second in the "Best Fantasy Novel" category in the annual Locus poll (Locus being "The Newspaper of the Science Fiction Field"). Omens placed behind Ursula K. LeGuin's Tehanu: The Last Book of Earthsea. Not too shabby! (Anyone interested in all the results should seek out the July 1991 issue of Locus.)

The other thing I'm writing in about is to fuss about something Ed McGeean said in his otherwise excellent report on the Reuben cruise. I thought I had the exact quote; I can't find it now, but it was along the lines of syndicated cartoonists are the only people expected to work 365 days a year. Wrong! I'm surprised he missed another big group, because they're in a very related field: newspaper carriers. Yeah! The folks who deliver the papers with all those wonderful syndicated strips. I should know because the Informed Spouse (Terry) has been delivering papers for more than three years.

One other thing, you had recommended some books that were similar in concept to the Where's Waldo books but were, you felt, superior. I don't recall author or titles, and I've already recycled that CBG. If you have the info handy, could you repeat the information?

As always, thanks for a great weekly read.

[Funny, we've seen Neil without his sunglasses but he always wears the same T-shirt.

We are only too aware that newspaper carriers work 365 days a year. Our son Steve (now a sophomore at University of Wisconsin-Madison) had a paper route for more than three years and he — and in bad weather, his father — had the thrill of arising early on Christmas, New Year's, and all other holidays to deliver the paper. He never missed a day, no matter how bad the weather — in fact, he delivered on at least three days when the U.S. mail was not delivered because it was snowing too hard.

Hilary Knight is the author-artist of Where's Wallace? — which is not a series. We are appalled that the book — a best-seller by a major author-artist — has been forgotten entirely, while the current inferior imitations are being hailed by the media as innovative. We resist the temptation to draw parallels with the comic-book industry.

Last time we checked, Where's Wallace? was still in print. In any case, your area library should have it in its children's book collection — or be able to get it for you on inter-library loan.]

I managed to buy Carol Kalish dinner. Once. It was in 1985, at the tail end of a convention; I suspect her guard must have been down, because I actually nabbed the check before she could take care of it. Carol kept saying that it was a Marvel expense, but I held firm. I wanted to make sure she knew, I said, that a group of us had gone out to dinner because we enjoyed the pleasure of an evening's conversation with her, not because Marvel was picking up the dinner tab.

I doubt that Carol remembered the event even a month after it occurred, but I did — because what I said was true. I enjoyed every opportunity I had to talk with Carol, to share one of those meandering, topics-be-damned conversations that we so often had. I can think of almost no interest of mine that Carol didn't have some affinity for — and enough knowledge to make the conversation vibrant and memorable.

I looked forward to those conversations; in fact, the Marvel booth was usually my first stop at any convention. I have many friends there, all of whom I enjoy catching up with — but Carol was my first and oldest friend in the comics biz, and so many of the interests we shared were far afield from the industry in which we both worked.

I didn't call Carol every day just to gab; she scarcely had the time, involved as she was in so many different projects at Marvel. I didn't even make the time to call once a week; sometimes it would be weeks or even a couple of months between conversations.

There isn't a single day that goes by that I don't miss talking to her now. That sounds like a cliche, but I guarantee it's true. Every day, I wish I could share just a few minutes' conversation with her. I consider her one of my best friends in the comics industry, and I don't think I ever told her that in so many words. I hope she knew it. I'd like to think she did.

And if there's a Heaven up there, Carol's probably already made it at least 25% better since she arrived, and I'll bet she's got plans to improve it a great deal more in the near future. That was one of Carol's greatest business attributes; she had an innate ability to improve on anything she touched, and she seemed to enjoy doing it.

I hope all of her work is completed by the time I get to see her again. I look forward to a long conversation with an old friend . . .

It has been a bad couple of weeks for the comics business — losing two quite different but very important and seminal talents (and friends): Rick Griffin and then Carol Kalish.

I was so shocked to hear from Ron Turner on Thursday, Aug. 15, that Rick was in the hospital and not expected to live. I am not sure how many of today's fans are really aware of Griffin or his importance. From his arrival in San Francisco in 1967,

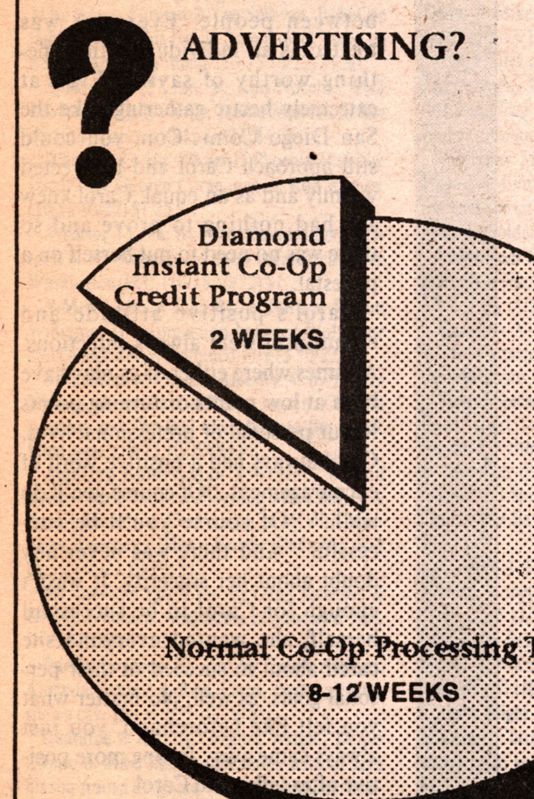
INSTANT Co-op Credit

Advertising is extremely important to the success of any retail business. But the costs of advertising and cash flow constraints often prohibit retailers from using it to their advantage.

Fortunately, generous co-op advertising funds are available from Marvel and DC Comics to help defray ad costs.

These DC and Marvel pre-approved ad slicks are perfect for co-op ads. Now, Diamond can credit your account instantly for using them!

SO WHY DON'T MORE RETAILERS TAKE ADVANTAGE OF CO-OP ADVERTISING?



The number one reason why retailers don't take advantage of co-op advertising is processing time: the length of time it takes to be reimbursed for their ad costs.*

Typically, the retailer pays his ad costs first and submits the proper co-op forms to the distributor for payment. And then, they wait– sometimes, over 12 weeks!

The processing time for co-op advertising is significantly less under Diamond's Instant Co-op Credit.

Diamond Comic Distributors is proud to introduce a new, innovative service:

Instant Co-op Credit.

Co-op advertising has never been so easy!

Here's How It Works:

- Simply, place your pre-approved ad or ad slick. When you mail your co-op ad materials to Diamond, you'll receive credit for your co-op advertising. Instantly.
- How? Diamond, not the retailer, will absorb the costs of waiting for Marvel and DC to credit co-op ads. After we receive your completed materials, we'll credit your account– usually in less than two weeks!

It's possible. It's here.

It's INSTANT

Co-op Credit from Diamond!

For more information on Instant Co-op Credit contact Allen Greenberg, Diamond Account Representative at (800) 783-2981 or (301) 298-2981. Or see Diamond Dateline for more details.

Only from Diamond Comics.

The Industry Leader.

According to Diamond's recent Co-op Advertising/Sweepstakes Survey, 62% of retailers cited slow processing time as the number one reason for not using co-op.

his art evolved from a surfer-influenced cartoon style into a unique style of graphic design. The series of dance posters he created (along with contemporaries like Victor Moscoso) for ballrooms like Chet Helms' Family Dog and Bill Graham's Fillmore not only were a reflection of the psychedelic energy of the late '60s, but stand as all-time classics of the poster format, ranking with those of Mucha and Toulouse-Lautrec. Griffin would bend the lettering on the posters into fluid, nearly indecipherable configurations, using them as design elements in addition to their sometimes-less-obvious function as an announcement of an event. He would often use comic-book and Disney imagery in his work.

I first got to meet Rick at the 1977 San Diego Comic-Con, where he stunned everyone by taking a corner dealer's table, chucking out the table, laying down an Oriental carpet and displaying his art — both his wonderful paintings and pages from undergrounds such as Zap and Tales from the Tube. A personal thrill for me (I was program director in those days) was to introduce Griffin to another convention guest — Timothy Leary. Rick had brought up a series of illustrations he had done for Rolling Stone (he also designed the original logo for that magazine) and went through them all, explaining the symbolism behind each image. He later described it as "a Zen Moment." It was.

In 1979, I had the opportunity to work with Griffin on a project I edited for Schanes & Schanes publishing: The Portfolio of Underground Art. Rick's feedback and support were instrumental in making the package what it was. Not only did he create the cover and lettering, but behind the scenes he helped to get some of the Zap artists to participate, such as the elusive R. Crumb.

He continued to attend the San Diego Comic-Con from time to time. His last visit was in 1989, when he showed up looking better than ever — healthy and happy with his new lady, Gina Marie. They had settled down in Petaluma, where they have lived until now. It was remarkable to see the happiness their relationship brought to Rick. They set up a big art display in Golden Hall of the old convention center, which featured as a backdrop his most famous commercial painting: a huge piece known as "The Flying Eyeball," commissioned by Bill Graham for a Jimi Hendrix-John Mayall concert. I will always treasure the look on the face of one of the Carden convention service freight handlers, a huge "deadhead" fan who remarked on the "giant poster," when he was told that this was the actual original art. A classic double take! That year Rick was so enthused about getting back in touch with the world of comics fans that he showed his appreciation by creating a remarkable illustration for the auction in his hotel room overnight and donating it the next day.

Rest easy, Rick.

The above was a letter I had meant to write for a few days. Then yesterday the terrible news comes that Carol Kalish has been suddenly stricken and has died. Wat a devastating lightning bolt! In a flash the comics field loses someone who is truly one of our best and our brightest. I can remember meeting Carol back when she joined Marvel as Mike Friedrich's assistant in the then-fledgling direct-sales department. It was not long before she took over the reins and became one of the comic-book marketplace's true pioneers. Crisscrossing the country, endlessly visiting stores, conventions, and distributors, she gained insights and dispensed information helping to define the parameters of this uncharted market that held the future of the comic-book field in its tiny fingers. While she was not a household word to the fans and consumers, she certainly was in the business circles, widely considered to be one of the industry's true leaders.

Speaking for the Comic Book Expo, we are most saddened by this loss, because the trade show was Carol's idea in the first place. As has been mentioned before, both in CBG and elsewhere, it was Carol who first approached the San Diego Comic-Con with the idea of developing a related trade show. She continually gave input, support, and energy to the show, from the first to most recent. It is hard for me to imagine going into the future without having Carol to bounce ideas off — usually over a meal at a hotel where an industry meeting or convention was being held, the location anywhere from London to Fresno. I can only hope that we can continue to create an event she would be proud of.

Carol's demise was especially shocking, since apparently due to natural causes, because she was a real "straight arrow": no tobacco, no alcohol, no drugs. There is a cruel irony when people who take such good care of themselves are plucked away without warning. I am sure I echo the sentiments of many when I say that she will be sorely missed. We don't see the likes of Carol Kalish very often in our business or our lives.

[Doctors said that Carol's death was caused by an aneurysm, a burst artery. Her death was neither predictable nor preventable.]

Mike Friedrich
Star*Reach Productions

Today the comics industry lost a major contributor when Carol Kalish died. The news shocked and grieved us here at Star*Reach Productions. We extend our condolences to her mate, Richard Howell, and to Marvel Comics.

I am deeply and personally affected by her passing. During my stint as Direct Sales Manager at Marvel Comics in the early '80s I was the one who brought Carol Kalish to Marvel. I was immediately impressed with Carol's intelligence and drive. In subsequent years she applied her talents extremely well in expanding the distribution and sales of comics. The industry will sorely miss her recent efforts at Marvel to further expand the types of comics produced and the ways comics are distributed.

I'm proud to have been Carol's friend and intensely mourn her passing.

Jim Chadwick
Meloney Crawford Chadwick

Carol Kalish was our friend. Over the course of the last 10 years, we watched in admiration and awe as she rose to the top of the field in the comic-book industry. It seemed as if Carol could accomplish almost anything she set her mind to. Her accomplishments set the pace for others to follow. Can there be any doubt that the current success of Marvel Comics would not have been possible without the vision and dedication of Carol Kalish in building the company's foundation in the direct-sales market?

But we'll leave it to others to outline her specific accomplishments in the industry. Carol was, first and foremost, a friend. Carol was a model of self-confidence and certainly never hesitated in expressing her views. But Carol was not someone you could label as egotistical. An egotist is someone who only cares about herself, and this was definitely not the case with Carol.

No matter how successful she became, she always had the time and genuine desire to keep in contact with those friends whom others in the business might label and dismiss as "just fans." Carol made no such arbitrary or petty distinctions between people. Everyone was treated as an individual with something worthy of saying. Even at extremely hectic gatherings like the San Diego Comic-Con, you could still approach Carol and be greeted warmly and as an equal. Carol knew she had nothing to prove and so there was no need to put herself on a pedestal.

Carol's positive attitude and enthusiasm were always infectious. At times where either of us may have been at low points or turning points in our personal or professional lives, Carol always had a positive word of encouragement. "Of course you'll do well." "Of course you'll be successful." And there was never any doubt about her sincerity. It wasn't enough for Carol to be successful herself; she wanted everyone she cared about to succeed in their personal goals, as well. No matter what you felt like beforehand, you just always came away feeling more positive after talking to Carol.

As always, when we would briefly get together at a convention, either at some group dinner or during a party, we would always say we would have to see each other at some future time in more "normal" surroundings. Usually, we rarely found the time or occasion for these promised gatherings. It became something of a running gag between the two of us and Carol and Richard. Now, of course, we will always regret not having made more of an effort to have found this time.

IN MEMORY

Eastern News mourns the untimely passing of Carol B. Kalish. The comic book industry has lost a most valuable player. Had Carol not been the fuel behind Eastern News' efforts, we may not have remained in the comic book business, much less expanded to where we are today.

As our entry into the world of comics was somewhat tumultuous, Carol was always there, always available, putting things into perspective. After several puzzling conversations regarding what constitutes a distasteful comic book vs. a "clean" (whatever clean means) comic book, she gave us a tip which we repeat to ourselves time and time again, in order to maintain sanity. She said, "You will learn that certain things will never make sense."

Ironically, in the end she proved herself once again to be right.

We will miss her insight, knowledge and presence.

In memory of

Carol Kalish

All of us at Dark Horse Comics were shocked at Carol's untimely passing.

Her contribution to the comics industry was immeasurable. Her love of comics and her dedication to the medium set a standard for those of us she left behind.

Most importantly, though, we've lost a very dear friend.

To all who loved Carol we offer our deepest sympathy.

We will miss Carol's wit, her charm, her intellect, and her passion for those interests and concerns which were important to her. And we will miss her caring and her consideration.

Our hearts go out to Richard at this terrible time. He is in our thoughts and our prayers.

When I made the decision to tackle an industry ranking of the Power 100 for Comics Interview #100 early this spring, there was no way to know how strongly the winds of change would whirl through the comics field this summer. Several times, just as we were about to finalize the list, important news came in which caused us to push back the deadline by a week — then another week — until in order to keep current we were pushed well past when #100 should have been shipping to stores.

Well past the proverbial 11th Hour and even past what I then believed to be the 12th, I wrote in the introduction to the Power 100: "If anything else happens between when these words are written and Interview #100 ships to stores — we don't want to know."

Alas, a few days later, a stunned Jim Salicrup called from Marvel with word of Carol's sudden death. Now, a week later, the shock and surprise is still upon me. Carol Kalish's influence on the comics field was immense — and all but invisible to collectors and even creators.

Her entry in the Power 100 list indicates the almost limitless future still awaiting her (the quotes are from an industry source):

"The smartest marketing presence in the industry." From Direct Sales Manager to Vice President of New Product Development for Marvel, "at one point it appeared that Carol Kalish was on track to become publisher, but she clearly has her sights set on bigger things. Her current position as VP of special projects allows her to take some risks and even be entrepreneurial in a corporate context. But the payoff, both for her and the company, could be huge if any of her ventures really take off."

In place of the intended editorial for issue #100 of Comics Interview, I substituted a stop-the-press update, shifting the focus from a wide-angle overview of the evolution of the industry over the turbulent years of the magazine's life to acknowledge, instead, a single individual who embodied and exemplified those changes. What follows is taken from that editorial:

She started her career editing for an independent publisher/distributor, now long-since bankrupted and reorganized; her roots grew out of a love for the field. Up from fandom, she took a position with Marvel in direct sales, helping to shape the tremendous growth and define the policies for what has now become the dominant means of comics distribution. She was intelligent, ambitious, cocky at times, and astonishingly articulate.

Her success advanced her corporate position and allowed her newer and bigger challenges and opportunities. And she was easily the equal of them all. Her loss to Marvel is more than significant — it's massive. Her loss to the industry is even greater. And her loss to those who knew her as an individual is beyond measure.

"If anything else happens between when these words are written and Interview #100 ships to stores — we don't want to know." Those words from the introduction to the Power 100 suddenly sound hollow and somber and serve as a reminder of how transitory are all our strivings. She didn't live to see the list, but I believe she would have liked being on it.

Carol Kalish is dead at age 36 — struck down in her prime. Comics Interview #100 is hereby dedicated to her memory.

It was with a deep sense of sadness and almost personal loss that I learned of the death of Carol Kalish.

My husband and I have had the pleasure of knowing her for more than 10 years. She was always friendly, enthusiastic, and helpful. Her retailer experience provided her with a wealth of hands-on knowledge which she never failed to share lavishly.

Carol taught me what it means to be a professional comics retailer. She cared about comics and the retailers. We will miss her.

Steve Sullivan

I was shocked and deeply saddened to hear yesterday of Carol Kalish's death.

Carol and I were only acquaintances, seeing each other at conventions and exchanging holiday cards once a year.

Still, I had great respect for her and the work she did. I believe (as do many people I know) that she was the major factor in Marvel's meteoric rise in the comics market during the 1980s. I saw her as the perfect person to start the WAM fan club and was sure there were even greater things in her future (probably as CEO of Marvel).

And this success could hardly have come to a nicer or more competent person. Carol had a keen mind, a quick wit, and was a terrific conversationalist. I always enjoyed talking to her or just hearing her speak.

No one in this industry could even touch Carol in a sales pitch. And she made listening to the pitch a pleasure.

She also stood up for her industry and freedom of speech. I remember an impassioned anti-censorship stand she took at the Chicago Comi-Con one year, when many were convinced that our industry was on the verge of another congressional witch-hunt. I don't think anyone in the room was left unpersuaded by her arguments.

Ironically, yesterday, the day after her death, I also received my copy of Marvel Masterworks #16 — the last of the Steve Ditko Spider-Man stories. Another of my fond memories of Carol was her promising attendees at the Capital City Sales Conference that she was committed to making sure all of the Ditko Spideys would be available in the reprint series. She carried through on that promise. Masterworks #16 will probably always bring a tear to my eye.

The loss I feel at her death is akin to the loss I felt when Jim Henson was taken away from us: the loss of future possibilities.

I may not have known Carol well, but I liked her a lot, and I (and the whole industry) will miss her for a very long time to come.

Regarding your reply to Walter Broome Spiro in the Sept. 6 CBG (#929), I would have to say that there are some mistakes which deserve to exist. Even in something made for the ages, such as DC Archives or Marvel Masterworks.

Perhaps this is further evidence that I'm becoming a crank. Or that my resentment towards colorization of old movies has spread to other media that try to "correct" old flaws on originals.

For example, in an early Spider-Man story, Doc Octopus calls to his foe "Superman" in one panel. A mistake? Yes. But one which seems more like a taunt (since our favorite Webhead was being thrashed easily).

Or in the first series of meetings between The Hulk and The Leader, there was a giant humanoid that was a uniform gray in one story, while in the next chapter it was a pink-flesh color with orange trunks. Since those were the only two chapters in which this creature appeared, which coloring is to be kept?

Switching to DC, there's a grand mistake of sorts in the first "new look" story for Batman. Namely that after subduing several armed criminals, he holds a gun on them while waiting for the police. It's only one panel, it's something that a smart person might do, but it runs against the "Batman Doesn't Use Guns" code that has existed since 1941.

Before someone starts thinking that I like mistakes, and that "warts and all" should be the way to go when it comes to reprinting old stories, I don't. Just because someone accidentally gave green faces to people (as happened in a printing error with All-Star Squadron Annual #3) doesn't mean that it must occur forever. Nor should the word "pharaoh" continue to be spelt as "pharoah" just because someone forgot to use a dictionary more than 20 years ago.

However, if the idea of the reprint project is to be a facsimile (as I thought was the case with DC Archives and Marvel Masterworks), then maybe the original errors should be kept. If it's meant to reprint those tales from old in a form that will last for a long time, then we might want to re-draw whole pages. Such as with one Captain America story which ends with him parachuting, but in the next chapter he's been in free fall.

Ultimately, it boils down to who makes the decision to correct a past mistake and how far the correction process should go.

[We do not recall anyone at Marvel saying that the Masterworks were to be facsimiles. We do not recall anyone at DC saying that the Archives series was to be a series of facsimiles.

How about if an artist's work has been mangled by inept coloring? Isn't it a matter of simple courtesy to him to preserve his work as if it were worth preserving? For example, we don't consider it "honoring" Jack Kirby and Joe Simon to reprint Boys' Ranch with the woefully bad coloring Harvey Comics gave it, particularly when it is within Marvel's power to set it right.]

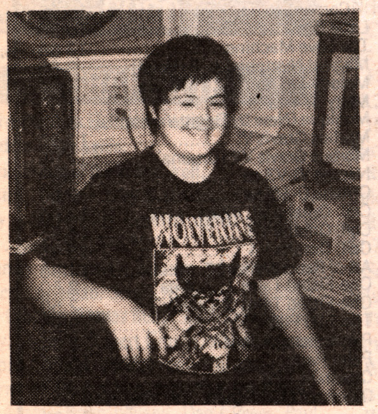
I am not Mr. Manners. On many occasions I have intentionally and unintentionally used words that have hurt, insulted, and even enraged others. Admitting my unintentional misstatements and ignorance has come with maturity. I've found that an apology or an attempt to explain my point of view more clearly usually soothes hurt feelings and creates better understanding. Hiding behind my right to express my thoughts as I see fit and accusing others of being overly sensitve or misinterpreting me is childish.

The "angry young man" whose column appears in CBG seems to delight in hurting, insulting, and enraging others, intentionally or not. His skill at hiding behind his rights to is second to none. This proves to me that he is younger and angrier than his date of birth would indicate.

This "angry young man" sees himself as a carpenter. I see him as an apprentice who has very little respect for his craft. Words have as much lethal power as his "loaded revolver." Words like "Mick" or "Shanty Irish" which were shouted at my grandparents perpetuate wars. The powerful negative meaning is passed from one angry generation to the next.

A true craftsman uses his "tools" to create truth and enlightens his audience. He may challenge them in many ways but he must be willing to defend his words and clarify their meaning. A carpenter who uses his "hammer" to leave bent and half driven nails in a piece of work can cause as much pain as one who uses his "hammer" to kill.



Katie, not suffering.

I challenge the "angry young man" to defend or clarify his choice of words when he refers to "people suffering from Downs Syndrome." I don't understand his use of the word suffering. My daughter, Katie, doesn't seem to be suffering.

P.S. In regards to "the lady in Philadelphia": That was no lady, that was my wife.

One of the headlines on CBG #931, "Disney revamps line," prompted me to write. You see, I absolutely love Disney comics. They're practically all I buy. I started collecting them about a year and a half ago when the Disney company started publishing for itself, and I'm still collecting them now. It's easy to see, then, why I'm saddened by the loss of some of my favorites, including Chip 'n' Dale Rescue Rangers, DuckTales, Mickey Mouse Adventures, and Tale Spin.

At first, I was puzzled as to why Disney would stop printing its comics. They seemed pretty popular, both in comics shops and on the newsstand. I finally understood, though, when I came across the Statement of Ownership on the inside back cover of DuckTales #18. The following figures are averages for the last 12 issues of that title:

Net press run: 169,371

Total paid and or requested circulation: 34,811

Returns from news agents: 128,186

Nearly four copies were returned for each one that was sold. It's no wonder that Disney is cutting back on the number of titles published. Disney gave it a great shot, though, and I hope it will continue with Donald Duck Adventures, Uncle Scrooge, and Walt Disney's Comics and Stories for a long time to come.

Well, now that I'm only spending $4.50 instead of $13.50 a month on Disneys, I need some suggestions as to what I should spend my money on. Why don't you guys publish a listing of your top 30 favorite non-super-hero comics? People are always writing in suggesting that we spend our money on some of the great non-super-hero material out there instead of buying five copies of X-Men #1, but their lists are always about 20 titles long. Maybe if someone listed their top 20 or 30 and gave a paragraph description of each, it would be easier to choose three or four to try. After all, the money I saved by not buying X-Men #1 isn't quite enough to buy 20 comics, especially at the independents' prices.

You're probably saying, "Isn't that what we did in issue #928?" No. While that issue provided a lot of information about each publisher, it didn't say a whole lot about each comic book.

"Comics in Your Future" doesn't do it either. The one or two sentences aren't enough to convince me to buy a comic. What you need is a once- or twice-a-year review of the top independent comics. It would help collectors like me who are lost without CBG.

[In the words of our favorite presidential candidate, Patrick Layton Paulsen (when asked if he could increase spending, lower taxes, reduce inflation, and eliminate the federal deficit), "Sure. Why not?"

Don is working on comics reviews (delayed by thunderstorms, among other things — the only place he can concentrate enough to write reviews is at home, away from the constantly ringing telephone in his office, and we have to take down the computer whenever electrical storms endanger it) and will add your request to the list.

Among the comic books you should try are Sandman (not an "independent," but not reading it for that reason is as bad as reading trash just because it is published by a small publisher; it is the best comic book currently being published), Elfquest and Cerebus (two of the earliest and most successful "independents" and a large part of the reason there are small publishers), and back issues — get them while you can; they were not published in the numbers of those hotly sought X-Men issues and there are no bales of them in every comics shop — of Zot! and Miracleman*.*

*Don't fail to check out mini-series (*The Books of Magic *will delight any lover of great prose and/or great art) and comics collections (Polly and Her Pals, Li'l Abner, Little Nemo in Slumberland.)*

People, we can't stress this too much: With reprints, with collections, with the wealth of new material of high quality, there is more good comics material available than ever before*. If you aren't satisfied with the comics you are reading, don't give up on comics. Widen your views.]*

I thought it was important to respond to Etienne Michel's comments in the Sept. 6 issue about the "picture of a dealer holding a Herriman illustration," the ad referred to obviously being the one that Rich Halegua has been running of late. Several weeks before that ad first appeared, I ran into Rich and he was very excited about having been able to purchase that piece, as we all would be after finally obtaining a long-sought-for item. Rich later pulled out the page in question and held it up for me to look at (just like in the "tricked" picture.) It truly is a lovely piece of Herriman original art.

I suspect that the reasons for the altered photo were much as you described. I hope that this puts to bed any questions of integrity surrounding that ad.

I recently started to collect The New Titans. I really enjoy the title and especially the Deathstroke character. I've tried to collect all the back issues in which The Terminator appears. Could someone please help me by telling me if my list is complete? Here is the list of comics I have acquired so far:

Deathstroke appearances

1. The New Teen Titans (1980) #2
2. The New Teen Titans #10
3. Marvel and DC Presents
4. The New Teen Titans #34
5. The New Teen Titans #39
6. Tales of the New Teen Titans #42-44
7. Tales of the New Teen Titans Annual #3
8. Tales of the New Teen Titans #53-55
9. The New Titans #62-64
10. The New Titans #70-present

I would appreciate any help I could get. Also, I would like to mention that Marvel and DC Presents featured The X-Men and The New Teen Titans. Now I'm expecting The Terminator to become real popular, and this comic has a short battle between The Terminator and Wolverine. Can you imagine the value of a comic book with a battle between a popular Marvel character and a DC character (for example, Lobo versus The Punisher)? Buy this book if you can. Not only for the investment, but also for a great story by Chris Claremont and fantastic art by Walter Simonson. It's well worth the money. Thanks for your time.

James Marshall
Shawano, Wis.

While reading through an older issue of CBG, I came across a letter that mentioned an article and comic-book guide on Magnus Robot Fighter.

I am very impressed by the new Magnus series and would like to get a copy of this article. (It must have appeared before my subscription began.)

Is there any way to get a back issue of the issue it appeared in (probably November or December) or a copy of the article?

[It appeared in CBG #885, and we have sent Marshall a photocopy for his files. We note that Voyager had planned to reprint the Gold Key Magnus material at the time — but hasn't yet done so.]

Flashback: 10 years ago

Artist-writer John Byrne takes over The Fantastic Four with issue #232, July 1981, and goes "Back to the Basics."

SYSTEM

Leading with New Ideas:™ 1982

In 1982 Capital City began advertising and wholesaling their own brand of comics supplies, The Comic Defense System®. Today the Comic Defense System is the only complete branded supply line packaged for retail sale. It consists of ProBags®, All-White Backer Boards™, Superior Mylars™, comic & magazine boxes and dividers. Unlike competing supply producers, Capital City has concentrated on advertising to the consumer, boosting our retailers' sales. At the same time, Capital City doesn't sell Comic Defense System products to consumers; we don't compete with our retailers for the consumer's dollar.

In 1990 the words Comic Defense System and the Comic Defense System logo became registered trademarks of Capital City Distribution, Inc. Any unauthorized use or duplication of Capital City trademarks without prior permission from Capital City is forbidden by international, federal, and state law. Capital City will not hesitate to take all steps necessary to protect its rights under law.

Retailers, look for the Comic Defense System in every issue of Orderpak® and use them as your exclusive supply product line.

FOR YOUR REFERENCE:

Many of our authors and advertisers use terms common in the field of comics collecting which may not be known to a general audience. For everyone's convenience, we list some of the most common terms:

CBG Comics Buyer's Guide.*

cel Original art for an animated cartoon, it is a painting done directly on celluloid (hence the name).

Comics Code The rules of the Comics Magazine Association of America, formed in 1954 to censor comics.

direct distribution/sales System of non-returnable publication distribution in which comics and specialty shops receive items to sell outside the returnable newsstand distribution system.

Golden Age Indicates the first era of comic-book production — which occurred in the '30s and '40s.

Overstreet/Overstreet prices/Overstreet Guide All refer to Robert M. Overstreet's annual The Comic Book Price Guide and the prices therein. "20% off Overstreet" refers to an item's costing 20% less than its Guide-listed value.

SAE/SASE/sae/sase Self-Addressed Envelope, Self-Addressed, Stamped Envelope. Used in ads ("Send SASE."): include an envelope addressed to yourself and with sufficient postage to insure delivery.

to focus national attention on sex and violence in pre-Code comics and led to comics censorship.

Silver Age Indicates a period of comic-book production of slightly less (nostalgic?) luster than the Golden Age. Usually considered to have begun with the first revival of a '40s super-hero: the Flash revival, in Showcase #4 (Sept.-Oct. 1956).

"In Germany they came first for the Communists, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a Communist. Then they came for the Jews, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a Jew. Then they came for the trade unionists, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a trade unionist. Then they came for the Catholics, and I didn't speak up because I was a Protestant. Then they came for me, and by that time no one was left to speak up."

GRADING GUIDE

Theoretically, given a set of grading rules, determining condition of a comic book should be simple. Unfortunately, flaws vary from item to item, and it can be difficult to pin one label on a particular issue. In no way is a CBG reader or advertiser bound to follow this or any other standard, but each is welcome to use this as a service which can clarify collecting terms.

Mint This is a perfect comic. Its cover has full luster, with its edges sharp and its pages like new. There are no signs of wear or aging. It is not imperfectly printed nor markedly off-center. "Mint" means just what it says.

Fine This comic book's cover is worn but flat and clean with no defacement. There is no cover writing or tape repair. Stress lines around the staples and more rounded corners are permitted. It is a good-looking issue at first glance.

Good This is a complete but very worn comic book. Creases, minor tears, rolled spine, and cover flaking are permissable — but there is no tape or browned pages. Older Golden Age comics often come in this condition.

Fair This comic book may have a soiled, slightly damaged cover, badly rolled spine, cover flaking, corners gone, tears, and the like. It is an issue with multiple problems but it is intact. Tape may be present.

Clive Barker embraces comics community

In his speech to attendees of Diamond Comic Distributors' Eighth Annual Retailers Seminar, writer-artist-director and keynote speaker Clive Barker made a personal commitment to champion the cause of comics and promised, "I will be the most articulate champion that I can be where the medium is concerned." Barker also challenged the entire comics community to address the way we see comics.

Barker, as an artist and writer, is relatively new to the world of comics. In the past few years, his works in the comics medium have consisted of adaptations of his stories and books and reworkings of his movies Hellraiser, Hellbound, and Nightbreed.

But Barker said he had been an enthusiastic fan of comics since his early childhood years, searching for American comic books on Penny Lane in Liverpool, where he was born. Barker went on to state that, like many comic fans, he also did "the classic thing at the age of 15" and gave up his entire comics collection.

"I allowed my mother to bully me and to shame me into giving up my collection. You regret it; I did, anyway. Two years later, I thought, 'Why have I got rid of all these comics that I love? They're part of me.' "

According to Barker, the relationship between comics and coming of age needs to be reexamined. Usually, "coming of age" means losing comics, and, Barker said, "that's a very dangerous attitude."

"We have to address that; we have to see what it is that makes us think that the very word 'comic' suggests something light, frivolous, suggests something comical. That, as we all know, is not what comics are predominantly these days . . . I don't read comics for the jokes; I read comics for the insight; I read comics for the poetry; I read comics for the art."

Barker also stressed that for comics to be taken more seriously, the level of comics criticism must also "come of age" and evolve into a better understanding of the medium.

"I feel that comics criticism hasn't yet come of age," said Barker. "I read comics criticisms and I feel that the vocabulary for comics criticism isn't yet right. What seems to happen is that the vocabulary of two other media are brought in to criticize comics: One is books, the other is movies. They are not books with pictures; they're not movies waiting to be made. And I think that's very important.

"There's a kind of feeling that, really, comic books are on their way to becoming movies and if the creators had more money they'd make them into movies. I think comic books have a unique place in our culture. And one which is yet to be fully exploited."

Barker also said that his "enthusiasm for comics knows no bounds," and he hopes to create new works tailored specifically for the comics medium. He also went on to remark how he would like to spread the good word about comics in the general media.

"I have some little reputation as an author and as a moviemaker and I am here to make a kind of promise that my enthusiasm will be voiced whenever I can voice it — that whenever I can get on a radio show or a TV show, I will enthuse endlessly about comics.

"I would like to be a permanent member of your community. And I promise that I will be the most articulate champion that I can be where the medium is concerned."

Sex & Death

'Adult' one-shot claims to take different approach to topics

Acid Rain Studios has announced publication of an "adult" comic book, Sex & Death. The studio describes it as an "experimental [comic] book that explores the psychological edge of prostitution and murder. Rather than following the direction of many adult comics (i.e., sex for fun or over-graphic violence), Acid Rain chooses to produce a more 'mental' comic, hoping to touch on a different facet of the subject of sex."

Sex & Death probes into the reflections of a police detective's morality as he investigates the murder of a prostitute. Artist-writer Mark Paniccia said his comic book is "written in existential overtones and drawn in a minimalistic style" and that "Sex & Death attempts to communicate on a more intellectual level than most adult comics. The book was not made in retaliation to what's out there now; it's just that we feel some people may be ready for something a bit more serious. It's a book to make you think, not fantasize about."

Despite its graphic title, he said the book avoids graphic nudity and violence. The one-shot goes on sale in October.

Mid-Ohio-Con returns to Mansfield

Mid-Ohio-Con celebrates its 12th anniversary with a return to Mansfield, Ohio, and Fairhaven Hall on the Richland County Fairgrounds on Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 9 and 10.

Mid-Ohio-Con is the largest comic-book show in Ohio and annually draws thousands of fans and collectors. This year's roster of guests is topped by the return of John Byrne, currently the writer of X-Men, Uncanny X-Men, and Iron Man and the writer-illustrator of Namor, the Sub-Mariner and She-Hulk. He will soon launch his new creation, The Next Man, to be published by Dark Horse Comics.

Mid-Ohio-Con 1991 will also feature appearances by Gary Barker, syndicated cartoonist for Jim Davis's Garfield; Amazing Spider-Man artist Mark Bagley; Tom Lyle, artist of the Robin mini-series for DC Comics; cartoonist Donald Simpson, and writers William Messner-Loebs, Roger Stern, Chuck Dixon, and Tony Isabella.

An 80-table dealers' room will feature retailers from throughout Ohio and the United States. Those attending Mid-Ohio-Con will have the opportunity to purchase, sell, or trade collectible comic books and related merchandise such as original cartoon art cels, videos, trading cards, limited edition books, rare toys, and movie memorabilia.

Mid-Ohio-Con founder and Director Roger Price said, "It's great to be able to bring this show back to Mansfield where it was born 12 years ago. I'm getting many favorable comments regarding our return to Fairhaven Hall, where the show was held from 1983 to 1988." Scheduling conflicts resulted in Mid-Ohio-Con being held out of town in 1989 and 1990.

Mid-Ohio-Con is open to the public. For additonal information, send a self-addressed, stamped, business-sized envelope to R.A.P. Productions, P.O. Box 3831, Mansfield, Ohio 44907-3831.

Flashback: 80 years ago

Edgar Rice Burroughs begins work on a story he titles "Under the Moons of Mars" in July 1911. It is the first half of a novel that will be published as A Princess of Mars — the first of a series of adventures of Captain John Carter of Virginia upon Mars, known to the inhabitants as Barsoom.

Marvel Hits the Market Swinging

July 26, 1991. Madison, Wisconsin.

Marvel hit the stock market swinging in July. The offering went out at $16.50 on July 15 and rose 20-30% shortly after trading began on the New York Stock Exchange. Marvel hyped the opening by sending a costumed Spider-Man character to the stock exchange on the 15th to swing through the rafters in a cleverly staged media event. There was undoubtedly also an effect on the traders on the floor below, who showed their enthusiasm by running up the price at a healthy pace. As of the close today, Marvel was at 20 5/8. The high since the open was 22.

The offering was a success before trading opened. Both the number of shares and the initial price were increased from the initial estimates by the underwriters. The New York Times estimated the morning the stock started trading that the offering would raise up to $82 million, of which about $50 million would get kicked up to Perelman's parent companies. Based on what we know, that estimate seems accurate. The use of Spider-Man on the stock exchange was not the first use of Marvel's characters to help promote the offering. The prospectus featured Spider-Man on the cover, and a fold-out poster featuring a number of Marvel characters inside the front cover.

Internal Correspondence covers news from outside the market that affects events in it, as well as complete coverage of news that's happening in the market served by specialty retailers.

Why is Internal Correspondence® Quoted by the New York Times and Fortune?

Capital City Distribution, Inc. has published Internal Correspondence - "the news magazine for specialty retailing" - continuously since 1982. In those nine years, Internal Correspondence has become the source for market reports, product news, best-seller lists, and commentary on industry trends. We assume the New York Times and Fortune use market information from Internal Correspondence for the same reasons retailers do - because it's accurate, complete, well-presented, and reliable.

Capital is at the nexus of the distribution system for specialty stores, where information from both publishers and retailers flows. This information is compiled and reported in Internal Correspondence each month as a tool for understanding today's complex markets. If you're not reading Internal Correspondence every month, you don't have all the information you need.

Internal Correspondence is provided free of charge each month to Capital's retailer customers, and to subscribers for $200 per year. If you want to get Internal Correspondence, contact Teresa, Tim or Jerry at 608-275-7777.

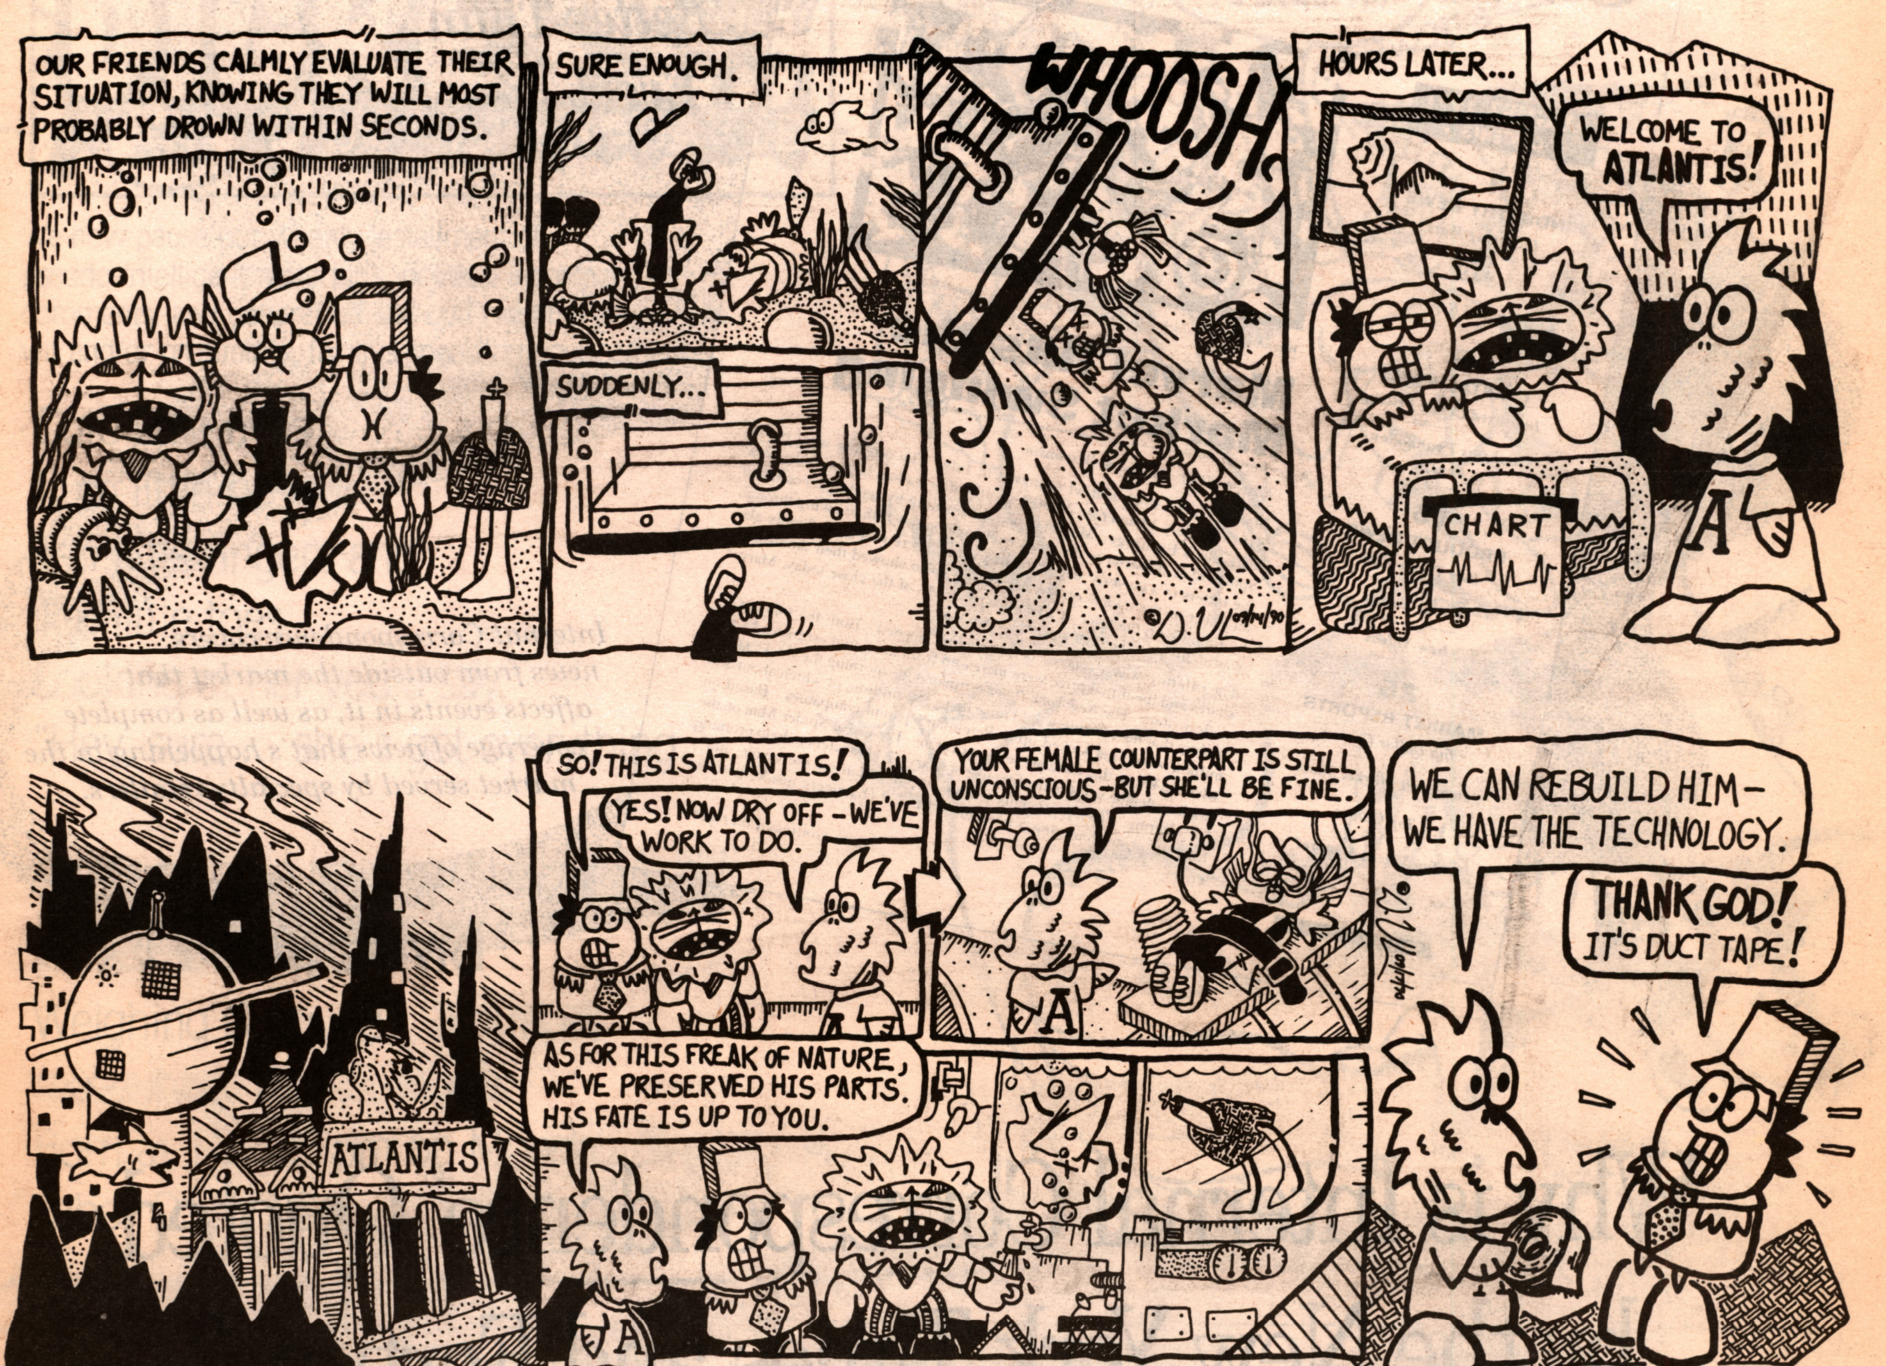
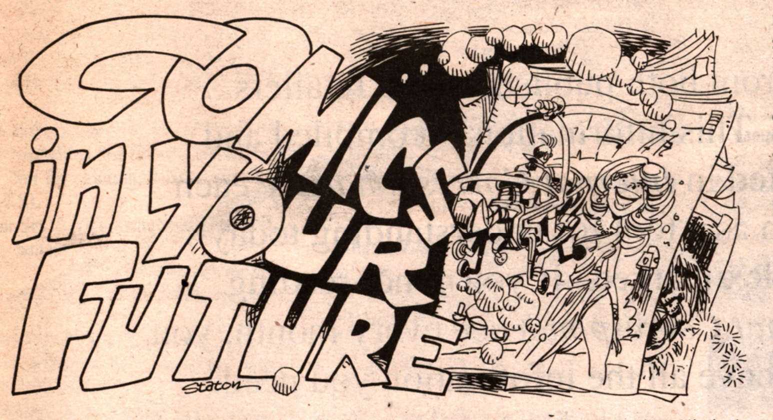
ADVENTURE!

By Dan Vebber





This list is continually updated and revised. Each company's titles are arranged alphabetically by sales date. The first date in parentheses is the date it is to be shipped to distributors, the second is the on-sale date: (10/1 10/8) would mean the title is to ship Oct. 1 and go on sale Oct. 8; (Oct/Nov) would mean that it ships in October to go on sale in November. If only one date appears — such as (10/1) or (Oct) — that is the shipping date. Comics shops have issues for sale earlier than the official on-sale date.

About late titles

In the following list, titles at the beginning of each publisher's section which do not have a shipping and/or on-sale date are, as far as we can determine, late — those titles had not appeared as of the date this issue went to the printer, according to all the sources we can check. Publishers which do not publish anything within a reasonable length of time will be dropped from the "Comics in Your Future" listing. Corrections, updates, and reschedulings — and more late issues — will be noted two weeks from now, when this list runs again. Publishers should notify CBG if comics on this list have been published, canceled, or rescheduled.

BUT I DIGRESS...!!

by PETER DAVID

We now pause our weekly installment of pseudo-intelligent natterings, political incorrect comments, and general off-the-cuff remarks passing as wit and/or profundity, for this special announcement ...

Cute little eyes
Cute little nose
Ten little fingers and
Ten little toes
Looking at her you'd say,
"Hey, sure ... she's got everything."

Announcing a new part of our world...

'Rust' returned to creator

Rust, formerly with Now Comics, has found a new home. After regaining control of his creation through bankruptcy court and with help from Malibu Graphics, writer-creator Steve Miller has signed the series with Malibu's Adventure Comics imprint. Art team, release date, and format will be announced shortly, said Malibu Publisher Dave Olbrich.

"We're very pleased to have Rust as part of our line-up," said Creative Director Tom Mason. "The series had a solid following and a healthy run and with its original creator back on the book, that following can only increase."

Miller was equally enthusiastic about Rust's new lease on life. "Malibu was instrumental in helping me regain control of my creation, and in return I gave them first crack at the new series. The stories will be moody but upbeat, and I'm looking forward to telling Rust adventures my way." Miller added that he looked forward to a longer lead time. "The first Rust stories were so rushed I barely had time to think. I want to let the book develop slowly over time."

Flashback: Five years ago

Cerebus the Aardvark, as depicted by creator Dave Sim with Gerhard, guest-stars in Kevin Eastman and Peter Laird's Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles #8, released during summer 1986.

Flashback: 15 years ago

The first four titles in the series of Marvel Classics Comics are distributed during summer 1976, all with new cover art by Gil Kane. Originally published by Pendulum Press are the adaptations of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, The Time Machine, The Hunchback of Notre Dame, and 20,000 Leagues under the Sea.

Bob Layton signs 'Previews' inserts

Bob Layton, creative art director and production manager for Valiant Comics, was in Baltimore recently to sign a limited number of inserts for the September issue of Diamond's Previews catalog. The full-color insert, of which Layton signed 500 copies, promotes his new X-O Manowar series to be released in October and the new Harbinger series from Valiant. The autograph appears below X-O's fist toward the bottom third of the insert.

Cowan autographs 'Deathlok' to save minds

"Heroland Comics is proud to announce that Denys Cowan has agreed to autograph Deathlok #6 with proceeds to benefit the United Negro College Fund," said Lee Tennant, owner of Heroland.

"Denys' art has made Deathlok one of the hottest comics on the market today, and this issue is the first part of the five-part series-within-a-series that will guest-star The Punisher and Ghost Rider. We feel that this comic book will do tremendously well even though it does not have gimmicky covers, bagged editions, or mutants. It will sell well because of a strong story and excellent artwork," Tennant said. "We will be offering this issue on a first-come, first-served, prepaid basis. All copies will ship at the same time via UPS-COD cash only for shipping only."

He said that the signed comic books are available exclusively through Heroland Comics, 6963 West 111th S., Worth, Ill. 60482. Phone orders can be placed at (708) 448-2937. Major credit cards will be accepted for phone orders in addition to mail orders. The autographed Deathlok #6 will be sold for $2.50 each, plus shipping.

Book Guide

Shivering World by Kathy Tyers. Bantam, $4.50. Reviewed by Robert Coulson.

If you like plots and counter-plots, this is for you.

The setting is a planet in the process of being terraformed; it's been improved to the point at which humans can live there, more or less, but work is continuing.

A religious sect has colonized it, while the Gaea Terraforming Consortium continues to work. Meanwhile, the interplanetary colonial administration is suspicious of the colonists, and vice versa.

An ambitious underling is scheming to replace a colonial leader. The daughter of the head of the Galactic Eugenics Board has wangled a position among the Gaean scientists in an effort to obtain an illegal gene modification from the colonists, and the son of a famous entertainer has arrived as a stowaway, to escape unwanted plastic surgery. Someone seems to be sabotaging the Gaean terraforming process.

Naturally, all the main characters are suspicious of everyone else, until the conclusion. It's an entertaining book, and I liked the characters.

Book Guide

Krispos Rising by Harry Turtledove. Del Rey, $4.95. Reviewed by Robert Coulson.

To rise from farm boy to emperor in 350 pages, a hero needs a bit of luck and the author in his corner. On the whole, though, the plotting here is believably handled.

You may wonder a bit at the rapid rise after the book is finished, but each step is logical while you're reading it.

The setting is Videssos, the same locale as the earlier four books of the Videssos Cycle, but this takes place some 500 years before the previous series.

There will be at least one direct sequel to this entertaining novel, but it works very well as an independent book. The characters are well-drawn and interesting; I tended to identify with Iakovitzes, the ill-tempered nobleman.

Who designed Iron Man's armor?

By Will Murray

Despite many evolutions in armor — not to mention changes in the identity of the man inside that armor — Iron Man has proven to be one of the most enduring of the early Marvel characters. For all that, some of the significant contributors to his formative days seem to have slipped from the Marvel history books, including one famous artist-designer whose name is virtually never spoken of in relation to the golden avenger, despite his undeniably pivotal role.

Not long ago, I tested the Iron Man editorial staff with a deceptively simply trivia question: Who designed Iron Man's armor?

He was obviously thinking of the current incarnation of the character.

I put the identical question to Howard's assistant at that time, Len Kaminski. Len replied without hesitation: "Jack Kirby."

The fact that both answers are correct without being either absolute or mutually exclusive, only goes to show how complicated the issue really is. Before the question can be fully answered, an inescapable counter-question must be clarified: Which model of the Iron Man armor are we speaking of here?

Taking it from the beginning, let's go back to Tales of Suspense #39, March 1963, and the story in which Tony Stark first donned his gunmetal-gray-but-soon-to-be-gold armor.

When we think of the first year of the Iron Man strip, most people, I believe, flash on the seminal Jack Kirby stories. Not surprising, because everything Jack drew in those days tends to stick in the mind.

However, Don Heck drew the first Iron Man story. Kirby executed the cover, which Heck inked. And for several months thereafter, Heck and Kirby alternated pencilling the strip.

Does that mean Don Heck designed Iron Man's cumbersome prototype armor?

Not according to Heck, who recently informed me that, while he obviously drew the story, Jack Kirby designed the character! In a rare reversal of the usual comic-book procedure in which the cover is the last element drawn, that first Iron Man cover became the blueprint for the character. Kirby drew it, designing the earliest look. It fell to Stan Lee and Don Heck to dream up the background details, including the rather important detail of the man behind the bullet-shaped helmet, whom Heck said he modeled after Errol Flynn.

In those days, when a Marvel super-hero lagged in sales or reader reaction indicated something about the strip was not working, Stan Lee didn't cancel the strip. He revamped the character. It happened to Ant-Man and Daredevil, among others.

In Iron Man's case, Tales of Suspense #48 marked a dramatic evolution from the clunky robotic Kirby look to the more streamlined red-and-gold armor which, despite many subsequent mutations by Bob Layton, among other artists, is essentially the ancestor of Iron Man armor of today. This, by the way, occurred when the strip was a mere nine months old.

If one were relying on memory alone, one might be forgiven for crediting the streamlined armor to either Jack Kirby, whose cover to Suspense #48 was the reader's first impression of the new design, or to Don Heck, who drew most of the first two years of the strip's run and, at Stan Lee's behest, continually redesigned and recustomized the helmet.

Not so. Forgotten by even the most die-hard Marvel readers is the fact that Iron Man first donned his lightweight armor during Steve Ditko's stint on the strip.

Few realize that Ditko ever did Iron Man. They might be forgiven their ignorance; it was a brief period, only three issues. In each case, Ditko's pencils were virtually masked by hopelessly unsuitable inkers.

Ditko's first Iron Man story was the final issue in which Tony Stark wore the old gold design, which was pretty much reduced to slag by The Melter ("Iron Man Battles The Melter," Tales of Suspense #47, November 1963). That Ditko pencilled this story is obvious only if one is sensitive to Ditko layout and character designs. The Melter is as Ditkoesque a villain as they come. But inasmuch as Heck inked his pencils, the result is a story that, to the unpracticed eye, looks about 90% Don Heck. The title page credits clearly acknowledge Ditko as penciller, however.

Next came Tales of Suspense #48, in which the power of Mr. Doll — a kind of voodoo version of The Puppet Master who looked for all the world as if he had wandered out of a Dr. Strange story — forced Stark to abandon this old armor ("The Terrible Mr. Doll!"). So Stark forged the now-familiar red-and-gold ensemble with its nifty magnetically actuated foldable segments and dashing new helmet. It had the advantage of being lighter than his prototype suit, yet stronger and much more portable when disassembled and packed into Stark's ever-present briefcase.

This is the kind of functional character design that only a Steve Ditko could conceive. Yet few associate him with the concept. The reason? That story doesn't look like a typical Ditko job, thanks to Dick Ayers' heavy-handed inks.

I am a big fan of Ayers' inks. He is one of the supreme Kirby inkers, in my estimation. But for some reason, over Ditko, the end result looks dry and flat. Alas, if only Ditko himself had inked the story, I'm sure it would be as fondly remembered as Ditko's classic Incredible Hulk #6.

Finally, there's the next issue, in which Iron Man battled The Angel ("The New Iron Man Meets The Angel," Tales of Suspense #49, January 1964). Paul Reinman inked Ditko's pencils on this one. I believe this is the only time Reinman inked Ditko. It was not a match made in heaven, unfortunately. Still, it had its exciting moments, which included some excellently staged aerial battles between The Golden Avenger and a rogue Angel.

With that issue, Ditko left the strip, never to return. But his armor design continued. It was obviously successful, because, though it has been tinkered with many, many times, the fundamental design has never been replaced. The Iron Man of Tales of Suspense #48 is recognizable as the Iron Man of 1991.

To come back to the question posed at the beginning of this article, who did create Iron Man's armor? The most scrupulous but elaborate answer might run something like this: Iron Man's armor was designed by Jack Kirby, redesigned by Steve Ditko (whose version, incidentally, can't be called a complete and total overhaul, because it did incorporate such original Kirby elements as the chestplate spotlight, repulsor rays, and boot jets) and Don Heck (who made numerous helmet modifications including, unfortunately, replacing Ditko's neat flip-up faceplate with a solid-piece helmet studded by ugly rivets), and Bob Layton, who recustomized the design in the 1980s, adding a number of bulky attachments but not significantly superseding the Ditko design — except in that, after Layton was done, Tony Stark's formerly steamlined look ended up looking as cumbersome as the original Jack Kirby design!

But that's Marvel for you: Forever reinventing the wheel.

There's only one question still puzzling me.

If Stan Lee changed The Hulk's original gray-skinned look in 1962 because he thought gray an unappealing color for a comic-book character, why did he repeat the error with Iron Man only a year later?

Steve Ditko

A preliminary look at his works in the 1980s

By Robin Snyder

Steve Ditko began his fourth decade in comics illustrating mystery, war and science-fiction stories at DC and continuing to pencil Legion of Super-Heroes. For Marvel, he did an occasional fill-in and completed the three-issue series — "Captain Universe" in Marvel Spotlight — he had begun with Bill Mantlo. Charlton, still a reprint house, was publishing a variety of his mystery stories, mostly those written by Joe Gill.

I've followed a general outline used by other indexers.

Specifically: The format is chronological, by year, beginning with 1981. The first section lists comics work; others are labeled "books" and "miscellaneous."

Comic-book, book, and/or magazine titles are in italics, followed by the publisher's name.

Beneath that line, indented, I've noted the issue number, date, code letter (to be explained at the conclusion of the series), title of the work, and its page count.

Each entry is assumed to refer to a pencilled-and-inked work; additional or contradictory information follows next — unless the work is a reprint, in which case the original source of publication is listed.

As my title indicates, this is a rough draft of a larger work. At this point, I'm uncertain as to the final format to be used for the complete bibliography — book, booklet, magazine, or loose-leaf collection — and the size. Your suggestions and any additions or corrections will be greatfully accepted and acknowledged. Write Robin Snyder, 255 N. Forest #405, Bellingham, Wash. 98225-5833.

CLEARANCE SALE ITEMS

Ok folks - Want a bargain? Here's a list of books we've owned 6 months or longer - sometimes because we've had duplicates in the same grade, sometimes for other reasons. We don't care why! We turn all our books at least 2 times a year. Buy these at a bargain price now - we've discounted these by a whopping 35% (discount is already figured here).

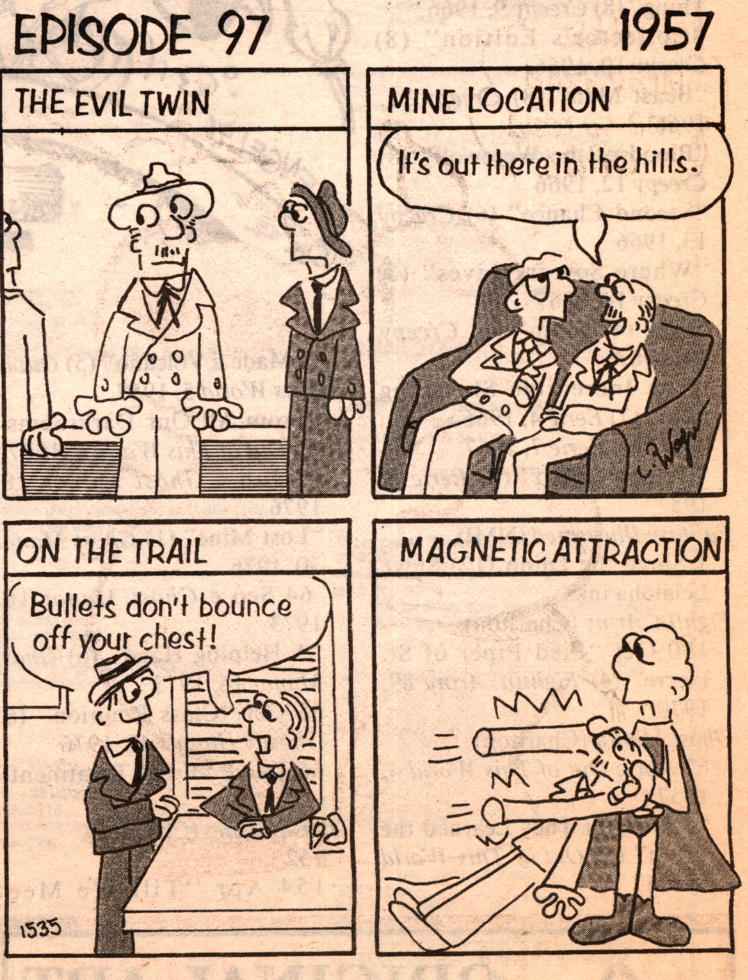
TV's 1957 Adventures of Superman: Episode #97
'The Superman Silver Mine'

By Charles A. Wagner



Dabbs Greer played the dual role of good guy Harrison Pebble and bad guy Dan Dobey. They were virtually identical, except that Dobey did not have a mustache. Pebble had spent the previous 30 years in the desert prospecting and had not ever seen television.

Dobey was involved in shady deals with his partner Boris. Dobey was so slick that the police had nothing on him, not even fingerprints. The only thing the police knew for sure about Dobey was that he had a metal plate in his head, a result of an auto accident. They did not even have a photograph of Boris.

Complete with double breasted suit, funny tie, and cowboy hat, Harrison Pebble strode into Perry White's office where Perry, Lois Lane, and Jimmy Olsen awaited him.

Pebble seemed disappointed that Superman was not there. Clark Kent had promised to arrange Superman's presence, but scant seconds remained.

In his own office, Clark Kent grinned and took a walk toward the store room. Superman flew in Perry's window right on time.

Pebble told the group that he wanted to help the children's camp fund by donating some land that had a silver mine on it. He was going to call it the Superman Silver Mine.

Later, Dan Dobey and Boris were discussing the Daily Planet story about the generous contribution. Boris noticed that Pebble looked amazingly like Dobey.

Boris paid a visit on Pebble at his Brentwood hotel room. After assuring himself that the switch could be made, he dragged Pebble off at gunpoint to a mine shaft that appeared to have red indoor-outdoor carpeting.

Clark Kent praised Lois Lane's story, but he was curious about the actual location of the mine. Lois expressed similar interest and phoned Pebble.

Dan Dobey arrived in Pebble's room just in time to take Lois' inquiry. He made an excuse that the location of the mine could not be revealed until certain legal documents were finalized. He also said he was watching all his favorite television shows.

Lois was irked. She wondered how Pebble could have favorite TV programs when he had not watched television before.

"He's eccentric," said Clark, who did not wish to be drawn into anything unusual this episode.

Back in the carpeted mine shaft, Pebble refused to talk, saying he wanted the silver to go to the kids. Boris left him to starve until he came to his senses.

Inspector Henderson was starting to wonder about the whole deal, also.

"This Mr. Pebble you wrote the story on — are you sure he's legitimate?" he asked Clark.

Henderson pointed out that there was a striking resemblance between Pebble and Dobey.

Lois also thought the resemblance was amazing and visited Pebble with Jimmy. Boris almost gave out his real name and really got Lois' interest up. She ripped off Dobey's fake mustache. (He had put it on crooked, anyway.)

"You shouldn't have done that, Miss Lane."

Then there were three in the mine shaft. Lois suggested they burn the metal door down.

The next day, Inspector Henderson told Clark he had gotten a call from Jimmy Olsen's mother. It seemed that Jimmy had not gone home that night. A quick check confirmed that Lois had also disappeared.

"You know, I have a hunch somehow that Dobey is mixed up in this," said Henderson.

Clark decided to check out Pebble.

"How are you going to find out [he has a metal plate in his head]?" demanded Henderson. "Use your X-ray vision like Superman?"

Boris was very nervous when Kent arrived. Dobey, however, straightened his mustache and shook Clark's hand, while Clark took a peek inside Dobey's head. Ah — the plate!

"I'll be seeing you, sir," said a smiling Clark.

"I think he smelled a rat," moaned Dobey.

"The Mr. Pebble I just talked to," Clark told Inspector Henderson," had a metal plate in his head."

"How'd you find that out?" Henderson wanted to know.

Clark said he would follow the two.

"OK, but be careful, Kent. Bullets don't bounce off your chest."

"How can you be sure, Bill?"

Superman trailed the crook's Cadillac limousine to the mine shaft. Dobey was planning to either get the mine location or leave the three to starve. Either way, he figured he could assume Pebble's identity and live off the rest of his fortune.

The plans were spoiled, however, upon Superman's arrival. Boris emptied his gun into Superman's chest. Then Dobey ran off, while Superman removed the door to the mine.

Not to worry, though. Superman magnetized what appeared to be a nearby downspout with his eyes and pulled Dobey back up the hill with this peculiar magnet.

"Incidentally," inquired Superman of Pebble, "just where is this mine?"

"We're standing in it."

GOLDEN AGE COMICS FOR SALE

Another great selection of Golden Age Comics. This is a consignment of books from a very selective collector and there are some very nice books that are very seldom offered. My usual terms will apply. Satisfaction is fully guaranteed and all books may be returned within 7 days for most any reason. You can therefore order with complete confidence. Please enclose $2.00 for postage with all orders. Phone orders will hold a book for 7 days. Books sent out within 48 hours if you pay by cash, credit card or money order but personal checks must clear my bank.

Golden Age Comics continue to be one of the best investments around. Everytime that I look at one of my earlier ads I wonder what possessed me to sell certain books. A couple of years from now I'll probably be doing the same thing with this ad. Where else can you buy something, keep it and enjoy it for several years and then sell it for several times what you paid for it. "What a concept". Happy Hunting!

X-MEN™ #1 COLLECTORS PIN SET!

Call Toll Free 1-800-827-1746!

Produced by Planet Studios and limited to only 2,500. Each set individually signed by Jim Lee!

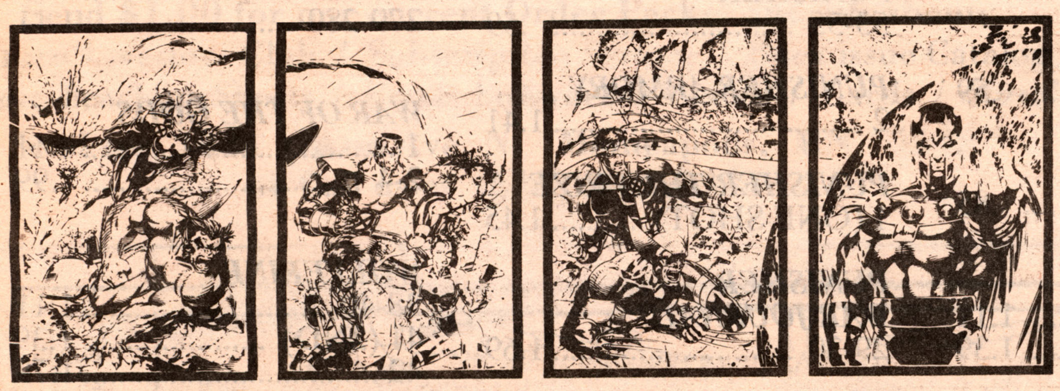
Choose an available number from 1 to 2,500 and you will receive all five pins with the same number. (Sorry, but number one goes to Jim Lee.) These pins will not be available anywhere else as a matched set.

The number you select will be registered to you, and you will have first option of receiving that number on future pin releases. This includes the Limited Edition X-Force™ #1 Cover Pin scheduled for September release and drawn by Rob Liefeld.

You will also receive a free one year (12-issue) subscription to the Novelty Price Guide. This will enable you to monitor the value of your pins as they are sure to skyrocket! The Spider-man™ #1 Cover Pin is already selling for $20.00 (we are currently buying that pin for $17.00 if you've got one!)

To order this pin set, simply call us to reserve your number. Send payment by mail or use your Visa/Mastercard. (If you send payment without calling first, a number will be chosen for you at random.)



The fifth pin is a compilation of the first four and measures a full 2x5 inches!

Call 1-800-827-1746 to reserve your number, then send payment of $69.75 plus $3.00 for shipping and insurance to: Subscriptions, Pin Division, 1565 Cliff Road, Suite 3-450, St. Paul, MN 55122.

Dear Friends:
To those who have asked about my survey to determine who is the most prolific writer in comics...here's a late report on the race. RK has again taken the lead, Joe Gill has dropped to #2, new entrant Paul Newman comes in next, followed closely by Gardner Fox, Gaylord DuBois, Otto Binder and Carl Wessler and, in the rear, Frank Doyle and George Gladir.
Meanwhile, here is our latest selection of issues for sale.

Here we go again! It's another batch of classic double feature combos for those hot summer evenings. Park your big screen TV in the back yard, plant your buns onto your favorite chaise lounge, and kick back in the night air while you suck in the atmosphere of 12 more double bill combos that actually played together back in the days when motor movies were king.

If you've never seen one of our drive-in double features before, you're in for up to three hours of what can only be described as "Nostalgia Deluxe". It's not just two movies on one tape, you also get a terrific assortment of original drive-in snack bar commercials, promos, countdowns, previews of coming attractions, and much more. We have another outstanding new batch of intermission stuff that wasn't available on last year's combos.

ALL TAPES RECORDED AT SP, 2-HOUR MODE! No slow speed, low quality stuff here. You get both movies, the snack bar commercials, the previews, everything...all on a T-180 tape, recorded from start to finish in the SP mode.

For those of us still fortunate enough to have drive-ins operating in our neigborhoods, why not let these double bills help rekindle our interest in a wonderful piece of American culture that's well worth preserving and desperately in need of our support. Let us help you transform your living room, your bedroom, or even your back yard into a motor movie palace. Drive-ins were, and still are, a delicious piece of the American Pie. Taste it.

Wax nostalgic for the incredibly low price of

per double feature

Please add $2.05 per double feature for packaging, handling, and postage.

Here's the lineup ...

DOUBLE FEATURE NO. 25 (No. DI-25)

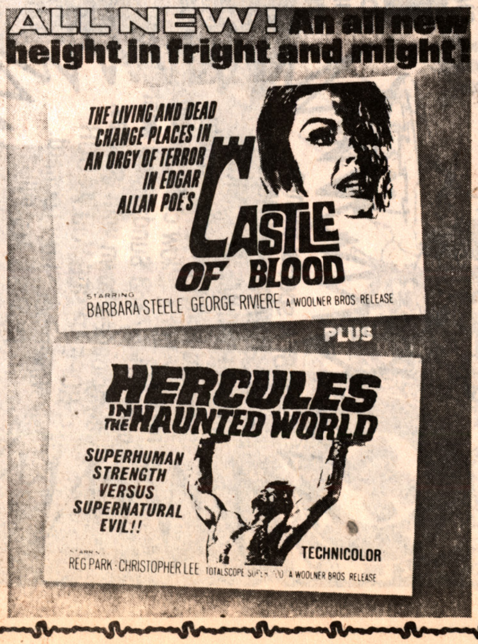
CARNIVAL OF SOULS (1962) Candace Hilligoss, Sidney Berger, Herk Harvey. This Herts-Lion release has stood the test of time and is now considered one of the best low budget horror films ever made. The lone survivor of a car wreck is haunted and followed by a ghostly personage. A riveting pipe organ music score. Seldom have elements of sight and sound come together in such a horrifying way. A haunting film you'll never forget.

THE DEVIL'S MESSENGER (1961) Lon Chaney, Karen Kadler, John Crawford. Another Herts-lion release from the early 60s, (whatever happened to Herts-Lion?). Lon plays Satan in this trio of very unusual horror stories. He sends his satanic messenger back to Earth at the films climax with a very 'special' gift for all the people of the world. If you enjoyed ONE STEP BEYOND or TWILIGHT ZONE you'll get a kick out of this.

DOUBLE FEATURE NO. 26 (No. DI-26)

CASTLE OF BLOOD (1964) Barbara Steele, George Riviere, Margaret Robsahm. One of the most atmospheric Italian horror films ever made. A newspaper columnist decides to spend the night in a haunted castle via a bet with the castles owner, who claims he'll be dead by morning. Steele is ravishing as the living ghost who falls for the young writer who spends a night with the dead. Eerie, suspenseful, and still frightening even by todays standards. Gothic horror at its best.

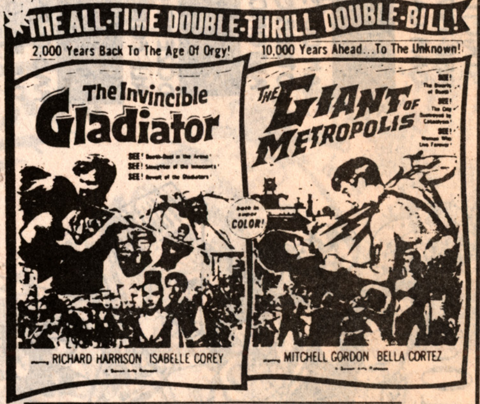
HERCULES IN THE HAUNTED WORLD (1961) Reg Park, Christopher Lee, Leonora Ruffo. Although it had been released a couple of years before, the Woolner brothers decided to rerelease this sword and sandal classic as part of a double bill with a new Barbara Steele import. Hercules takes an excursion into Hades, facing rock monsters, female demons, and other assorted monstrosities. Lee is superb as his evil nemisis. One of the very best, if not the best, non-major studio, sword & sandal import.



DOUBLE FEATURE NO. 27 (No. DI-27)

GIANT OF METROPOLIS (1962) Gordon Mitchell, Bella Cortez. A moody, interesting combination of science fiction, adventure, and fantasy. Harrison plays a heroic muscleman caught in a web of intrigue within an ancient scientific supercity. Its evil ruler conducts weird, scientific experiments while the city awaits its impending doom from a natural cataclysm. Wonderful music. Color.

INVINCIBLE GLADIATOR (1962) Richard Harrison, Isabelle Corey..This color adventure is jammed with all the things you usually expect in a gladiator movie: death duels in the arena, palace intrigue, gladiators in revolt, etc. Harrison plays the title hero who fights an evil tyrant for the freedom of a group of oppressed people. Good sword and sandal excitement.



DOUBLE FEATURE NO. 28 (No. DI-28)

SHE DEMONS (1957) Tod Griffin, Irish McCalla, Victor Sen Young. A hurricane strands a group of people on a jungle island that's targeted for practice bombings by the air force. There they encounter a hidden nazi camp where a mad scientist conducts strange experiments on native women, turning them into horrible monsters. A classic drive-in schlocker. Irish has legs like a 57' Chevy...classic.

GIANT FROM THE UNKNOWN (1957) Edward Kemmer, Sally Fraser, Morris Ankrum, Bob Steele. A group of research scientists head for the mountains. There they discover that certain radioactive properties within the soil have remarkably preserved many of the ancient remains they uncover. Also preserved and very much alive is a giant, legendary conquistador who frees himself from his grave and goes on a maniacal rampage.

DOUBLE FEATURE NO. 29 (No. DI-29)

FRANKENSTEIN'S DAUGHTER (1958) Donald Murphy, John Ashley, Sandra Knight, Sally Todd. A drive-in movie if there ever was one. Frankenstein's grandson carries on the family tradition by experimenting on young, teenage girls and by creating a gross looking female monster in the basement of his home. The climax features one of the best "acid in his face" shots ever filmed.

MISSILE TO THE MOON (1958) Richard Travis, Gary Clarke, Laurie Mitchell. Cathy Downs. A remake of one of Astor Pictures earlier sci-fi schlockers, CAT WOMEN OF THE MOON. There's a few different plot twists thrown in, including monstrous, lunar rock men who threaten our heroes. Our print contains the often cut scene of the astronaut being burnt to a crisp by the suns rays.

DOUBLE FEATURE NO. 30 (No. DI-30)

COUNT DRACULA'S GREAT LOVE (1972) Paul Naschy, Vic Winner, Ingrid Garbo. A beautiful color print of what may very well be Nashy's best film. Dracula is visited in his castle by a group of gorgeous, (and often quite topless) babes, which he procedes to vampirize in the usual manner. However, he longs for one of them to come to him of her own free will. Very brutal and bloody in places. Our print is the completely uncut, American theatrical release version.

THE VAMPIRE'S NIGHT ORGY (1973, aka ORGY OF THE VAMPIRES) Jack Taylor, John Richard. While traveling through the countryside, a bus full of tourists stops in a small European town. To their horror, they discover that all of the villagers are bloodthirsty vampires. An interesting Spanish horror film. Directed by Leon Klimovsky, who often did Paul Naschy vehicles.

DOUBLE FEATURE NO. 31 (No. DI-31)

THE WITCH'S CURSE (1962) Kirk Morris, Helene Chanel, directed by Ricardo Freda. Morris plays Maciste in this fantasy horror film about an excursion to hell. Maciste must find the damned spirit of an ancient witch in order to free her descendant from a centuries old curse. Set in Scotland.

COLOSSUS OF THE ARENA (1960) Mark Forest, Scilla Gabel. The setting is ancient Rome in the 4th century. Forest plays a mighty gladiator named Robur, who uncovers a plot to imprison a beautiful young princess. He exposes an evil duke as the perpetrator through a series of spectacular feats and combats.

DOUBLE FEATURE NO. 32 (No. DI-32)

SKI TROOP ATTACK (1959) Michael Forest, Sheila Carol, Wally Campo, Roger Corman. Shot at the same time and with the same cast and crew as BEAST FROM HAUNTED CAVE. Corman produced, directed, and played a Nazi commander on skis in this WWII thriller. Just like all of Roger's other sci-fi/horror films except they're fighting Nazis instead of monsters.

BATTLE OF BLOOD ISLAND (1959) Ron Kennedy, Richard Devon. In the final days of WWII, a pair of U.S. soldiers are stranded on a remote island in the Pacific. They struggle and fight to stay alive under almost impossible conditions. Shot on location in the Carribean by Roger Corman's filmgroup company at the same time he was filming LAST WOMAN ON EARTH and CREATURE FROM THE HAUNTED SEA.

DOUBLE FEATURE NO. 33 (No. DI-33)

MANBEAST (1956) Rock Madison, Lloyd Nelson, Virginia Maynor, George Skaff. A man and a woman arrive in the Himalayas to search for the woman's missing brother. They're confronted by a strange guide and a murdering pack of abominable snowmen which the guide claims to be a descendent of. Not bad for a Jerry Warren film.

PREHISTORIC WOMEN (1950) Allan Nixon, Laurette Luez, Mara Lynn. This classic turkey was brought out of mothballs six years after its original release just so it could fill the lower berth of a double bill with MANBEAST. Prehistoric babes battle against giants and dragons during ancient times. All in glorious cinecolor. Some truly hysterical moments.

DOUBLE FEATURE NO. 34 (No. DI-34)

SWAMP WOMEN (1956) Beverly Garland, Marie Windsor, Michael "Touch" Connors, Carole Matthews. A seedy group of female convicts kidnap a young hunk, (played by Connors) and drag him through the swamp while searching for a fortune in hidden diamonds. The girls fight over Connors and with each other in this schlocky exploitation thriller directed by Roger Corman. Garland looks hot in cutoffs. Lots of Gators and tough babes. Now mastered from a nice color print.

GUNSLINGER (1956) John Ireland, Beverly Garland, Allison Hayes. This Roger Corman western is worth watching if only to see two of the most gorgeous 'B-movie' babes that ever lived, (Garland & Hayes), in one movie together. Garland inherits the job of sheriff from her dead husband, while Hayes plays a landscam hustler who who hires Ireland to bump off Beverly. Nice color.

DOUBLE FEATURE NO. 35 (No. DI-35)

BATTLE OF THE WORLDS (1962) Claude Rains, Bill Carter, Maya Brent. Enjoyable sci-fi with Rains in one of his final roles as Professor Benjamin, who leads a space expedition against a computer-run, dead planet that's hurtling headlong towards the Earth. Great special effects for its time. Mastered from a gorgeous color print.

ATOM AGE VAMPIRE (1962) Alberto Lupo, Susanne Loret, Sergio Fantoni. A car accident leaves a beautiful nightclub dancer with a horribly disfigured face. She takes refuge in the house of a mad scientist who restores her beauty by murdering young girls and extracting their glands. He shoots up and transforms into a monster whenever he goes out on a killing. An old drive-in standard.

DOUBLE FEATURE NO. 36 (No. DI-36)

GIRL ON A CHAIN GANG (1965) William Watson, Julie Ainge. An outrageous exploitation film made the year after the civil rights workers were murdered in Mississippi. A white guy, a black guy, and a white girl are falsely arrested, abused, and eventually murdered by redneck, southern police. Very entertaining and totally engrossing in a sleazy way.

TEENAGE MOTHER (1966) Arlene Sue Farber, Frederick Riccio. A young teacher arrives at a small town high school to teach (gasp!) sex education. Later, a young teenage babe tells her boyfriend she's pregnant so he'll marry her. There's a rumble at a drive-in theater (they're showing GIRL ON A CHAIN GANG), hot rod races, go go dancers, angry parents, and to top the entire proceedings off, we're shown a close-up of an actual birth, complete with forceps. Absolutely astounding.

THIS OFFER ABSOLUTELY ENDS AT THE STROKE OF MIDNIGHT NOVEMBER 30, 1991!

COMICS BUYER'S GUIDE

● Comics and trading cards have been linked for decades.

● Cards are increasingly collected in today's comics world.

● From Batman cards of yesterday to hologram comics cards today, here's the issue for you.

Here's an issue featuring articles by specialists in non-sports cards, writing about cards today's collector will find appealing!

Remember Disney cards from the '40s? Remember the original Mars Attacks! cards? Remember when the Batman TV show gave collectors a line of Topps cards?

What's out there today? How much are those holograms worth? What's next with comics cards? Do comics companies plan more cards for your future?

Here's a special issue of CBG designed to attract non-sports-card collectors everywhere!

Reach those readers by contacting Diana Anderson today!

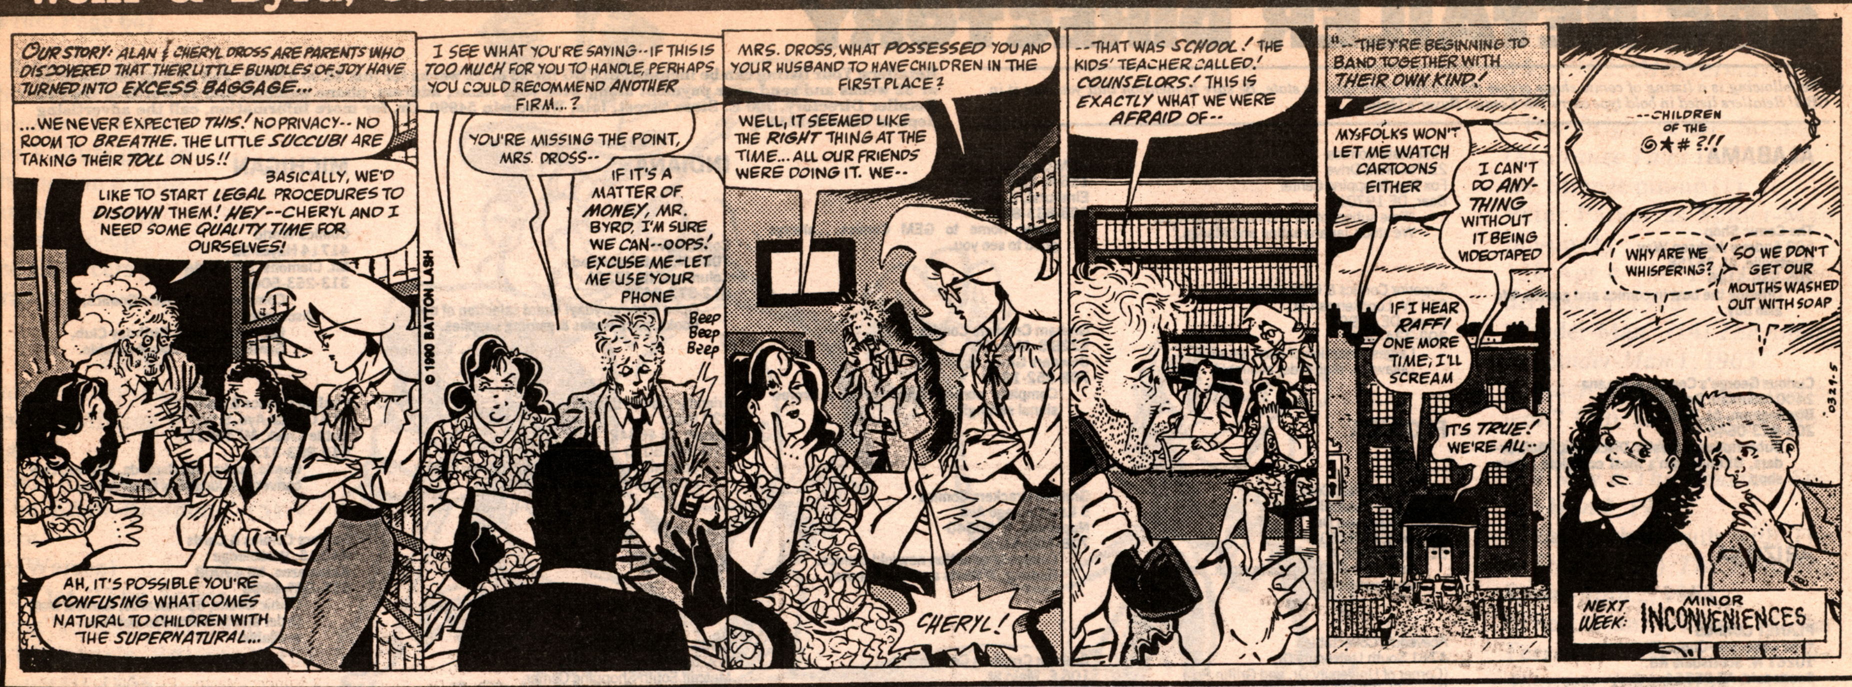
Wolff & Byrd, Counselors of the Macabre

By Batton Lash



Mali-Boo!

Adventure, Aircel, Eternity plan horror projects

October has always been the scariest month of the year, and Malibu Graphics has lined up a roster of spooky, gory, mysterious, and sometimes humorous horror titles.

The horror horde begins with Adventure Comics' licensed adaptation of the horror film Re-Animator, based on characters created by H.P. Lovecraft. Writer Steven Jones takes us back to the small university town of Arkham where, following the death of his mentor, young Herbert West transfers to Miskatonic University to continue his studies of the brain and death. But it's a clash of the egos when West accuses the University's leading brain researcher, Dr. Hill, of plagiarism and teaching outdated theories. And, to make matters worse for third-year med student Dan Cain, West moves into his house and begins using the basement for bizarre re-animating experiments. The full-color project has interior art by Christopher Jones and a cover painting by Dave Dorman.

Adventure will also release Re-Animator: Tales of Herbert West, a collection of six of the original West stories by Lovecraft. Included in the squarebound volume edited by Steven Jones with illustrations by Mikael Oskarrson are "From the Dark," "The Plague-Deamon," "Six-Shots by Moonlight," "The Scream of the Dead," "The Horror from the Shadows," and "The Tomb Legions."

Aircel Comics continues its monthly adaptation of another cult favorite: Two Thousand Maniacs! This Herschell Gordon Lewis creation revolves around a Southern centennial where unsuspecting Northerners are the "guests of honor." In this episode, adapted by Jack Herman and illustrated by Nigel Tully, the inhabitants of Pleasant Valley have more fun and games in store, like a barrel roll — with nails.

Eternity's Puppet Master: Children of the Puppet Master Prestige Edition marks Malibu's third film tie-in series available in October. Produced in association with Full Moon Entertainment and Paramount Pictures, the Prestige Edition is a collection of the complete, full-color Children of the Puppet Master mini-series. The second comic-book series based on the Full Moon movie characters, Children of the Puppet Master marks a return to the film and not only recounts its events, but includes a new twist. Dave de Vries and Glenn Lumsden return as the creative team on this project.

Martin Powell and Seppo Makinen make their return under the Eternity logo this month with Ghosts of Dracula, the sequal to their Scarlet in Gaslight. In this installment, Dr. Van Helsing closes in on the serial killer with the aid of long-time associate and world-famous detective Sherlock Holmes. Meanwhile, Harry Houdini receives both an offer and a threat from Count Dracula.

New to the pages of comics in October is science-fiction and adventure novelist Mel Odom with his own vampire tale to tell: Harte of Darkness. Centered in the large and bustling city of Houston, Harte of Darkness focuses on one man who has managed to slip through the cracks. He is Dennis Harte: private eye and vampire. Illustrated by Donnie Jupiter, Harte of Darkness is already beginning to receive notice from outside the comics field. Said horror novelist Jor Lansdale: "Noir meets the supernatural in this fun and exciting Private Vampire tale . . . sink your teeth into it."

Rising from the ranks of horror novelist to comic-book writer with Odom is Sidney Williams with the third issue of his mini-series The Mantus Files. Led to the mansion of the dark priest Secarus, Peter Mantus' journey into the New Orleans underworld reveals not only a few of Secarus' plans, but something of Mantus' own history. Illustrated by Thomas Giles and Dan Schaefer, The Mantus Files includes a cover by X-Men artist Steven Butler. Williams' new book, Gnelfs, was just released by Pinnacle Books.

Rounding out October's horror-movie-firstcomers theme is film writer-director Doug Campbell. Known for his film An American Murder (which you may have just seen — as Season of Fear — on HBO), Campbell makes his comic-book debut with Kid Cannibal #1.

The teen years can be a terrible time, but they're even worse for the overly overweight Nelson. Friendless and portly, the big boy is the butt of many a joke. But Nelson gets the last laugh when a prank on him gets turned around, transforming him into the enormous "Kid Cannibal" with an insatiable appetite for human flesh. Kid Cannibal is illustrated by Andrew Walls.

Archie Comics prints on 100% recycled paper

Archie Comic Publications has test-printed three comic books on 100% recycled paper (except covers). The catalyst for this recycling effort was letters sent by numerous readers in response to Archie's recent Environmental PSA Campaign.

World Color Press of Sparta, Ill., has printed test runs of Archie #393, Veronica #18 and Jughead #28 on 100% recycled paper manufactured entirely from reclaimed coated papers including magazines, books, and catalogs.

"Based on our commitment to encourage our readers to be responsible for the environment, printing on recycled paper was the logical next step," said David Silberkleit, vice president of marketing at Archie.

Archie Comics plans to further develop its environmental program to address the concerns of today's children. As one Canadian fan, Margaret O'Shea, wrote, "I have decided that it would be a good idea if you started printing your publications on recycled paper. Perhaps I am only a small voice in this large world, but I should be heard as a loud small voice."

Flashback: 15 years ago

The work of Frank Brunner, Scott Shaw, Steve Leialoha, Michael T. Gilbert, Mark Evanier, Dave Stevens, and others is featured in the Star*Reach Publications title Quack! #1, July 1976, edited by Mike Friedrich.

I went to bed Thursday night thinking "I've got to get up in the morning and be funny." I woke up Friday morning, went down to my office, and put my notes for this week's column back into their folder. They are now the notes for next week's column.

Don Thompson called me with the news about Carol Kalish just past 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon. Barb and I were heading out the door to go shopping. Barb's doctor had moved up the due date for the birth of our daughter, which meant we had a whole bunch of odds and ends to pick up sooner than we had planned. The new life we were bringing into the world had laid full claim to my woefully limited attention-span.

I was stunned, a description I would hear frequently over the next several hours, to hear that Carol had died. She was 36 years old, healthy, and almost superhumanly active with all of her Marvel Comics projects. Don had prefaced

I'M LOOKING FOR PRE-1970 COMICS FOR COLLECTION:] SEND PRICES OR FOR MY WANT LISTS. THANK YOU!!!

NEARLY 50,000 COMICS FOR SALE

After 11 years of collector comic retailing we are selling that part of our business to better concentrate on our newer area of rocketry and space collectables (Acme Rocket Company). This comic inventory being offered for sale is what we used for retail and for [illegible] in the metropolitan Phoenix area. We operated mostly under the name VISIONS, and sometimes as ALTERNATIVE COMICS or CASABLANCA COMICS. [illegible]

QUANTITY: Nearly 50,000.
48,100 standard-size: 152 boxes
800 magazine-size: 10 boxes
49,000 total: 162 boxes

VARIETY: [illegible] series and new comics; slow sellers have been weeded out by "Surplus Sales" to produce a selection with high turnover.

TYPES: Mostly superhero, then adventure, science fiction, and other special categories.

TITLES & QUANTITIES: The most popular are most heavily represented, such as X-Men, Spider-Man, Superman. There are long runs with a proportional quantity of each issue. A typical average title would have 1-3 copies in the 1960's, 3-5 in 1970's, 5-10 in 1980's, higher quantities on hotter titles.

PUBLISHERS: Mostly Marvel, then DC, other publishers (Oldies as well as new independents).

AGE: Mostly 1970's and 1980's, then 1960's, and some 1950's. No comics newer than summer 1987 (these are mostly readily available from other dealers).

CONDITION: [illegible]

FEATURES: [illegible]

ASSETS: These are optional materials which may be included in sale: [illegible]
B 50 extra comic boxes and 40 lids.
C 75 display headers for use in store or at conventions with attractive signs and easy lettering kit.
D Business name and professionally done logos (Alternative Comics, Casablanca Comics).
E Addresses of all mail order customers and catalog inquirers.

PRICE: In the very low five figures: approximate maximum of $15,000. Exact price depends on terms of sale (payment method, packing if required, any special handling) and on inclusion of assets listed above. The buyer assumes any transportation/shipping costs.

Telephone: afternoons & weekends: (602) 838-3629 • Other times, or to leave a recorded message: (602) 921-1603

the news with the warning that it was bad and in a tone that left no doubt that we had lost someone important to us. I had maybe a second to think of some of our older colleagues before he told me about Carol.

I'm not going to use this space to eulogize Carol. There are people who knew her far better than I, and that will be their right and privilege. But our paths had crossed many times over the many years and we'd shared a few meals here and there and Barb and I both liked her very much. She was highly respected in the comics field and, rapidly aging liberal that I am, I took pleasure in her success in our male-dominated industry.

My closest tie to Carol was through Richard Howell. Richard has lived with Carol for as long as I can remember and he also put up with me for something like two years as the artist of our Hawkman series for DC Comics. I resisted the urge to call Richard as soon as I got off the phone with Don, knowing that he was probably getting too many calls from well-intentioned friends. I sent him a card and a note and felt helpless and stupid. Which is a common reaction to death. You can't do anything for the ones you've lost and you can only hope to be there for the ones left behind. There is, sometimes, comfort that comes from knowing that the ones left behind have good friends to lean on if they need them. Richard is fortunate to have those friends.

Barb and I did our shopping later that afternoon. There's an anxiousness that surrounds both the beginning of life and its end, an emotional circle of joy and sorrow. We returned home to learn that another comics professional and his wife had just given birth to their first child. I mailed congratulations to them as I posted our sympathies to Richard.

I got some more calls from friends in the industry, including a most welcome call from someone who had spoken to Richard and now wanted to assure me that our friend was holding up OK. It was a comforting message in this time of grief, and I felt part of another circle, the circle of the friends I have made in our community of comics fans and creators. I made a few calls myself before retiring for the night.

I don't have anything particularly profound to share with you this week, but I am thinking about a comics writer I know. He's a very good writer, but I've always felt that he overwrote his tales; I used to joke that he wrote every story as if it were going to be his very last story and he had to cram every stray thought he ever had into each script. I have no idea if this is actually how this writer felt, but that's how it seemed to me.

I wasn't close to Carol Kalish, but it always appeared to me that she approached each new project as the first in a long series of exciting ventures. She had so many projects in the works. She had so many new ideas to offer. She had so much energy to put into her work. Again, I'm describing my own and perhaps completely inaccurate perceptions, but I always thought of Carol in term of beginnings. That's how I'm going to remember her.

We're all part of various circles, and not even the passage of someone as good and as creative and as skilled as Carol breaks the circles. We take strength from these circles and we give our own strength back to them. We don't leave the circles, even in death. We're always there and, if our physical departure brings the other members of the circles closer for a time, if they keep their memories of us with them, then we continue to lend our strength to all the circles of our lives.

God bless and keep you, my friends. You are loved more than my poor words can express.

Ken Krueger roast to be held Oct. 2

Capital City will be host of a retirement roast for Ken Krueger on Wednesday, Oct. 2, at the Biltmore Hotel in Los Angeles from 8 to 10 p.m.

Krueger, currently the customer service supervisor of Capital's Commerce location, will be going into semi-retirement. Krueger has been involved in the comics business for 40 years at all levels. In distribution, his career has carried him through four distributors, culminating in his appointment as the industry's first mobile account representative for Capital City Distribution Inc. in 1990 and his subsequent roles for Capital as sales and customer service manager and the acting branch manager position he holds now. Krueger has also been a publisher and a retailer and has run conventions.

He plans his semi-retirement to be an active one. He will resume acting as Capital's mobile account representative on a part-time basis. He will also remain active in the comics world in other ways.

The roast will be an opportunity for his friends and colleagues to wish him all the best. Capital City customers as well as all of his other friends are invited but invitations will be checked at the door, so it is important to RSVP for this event in advance. Call Teresa Engelhart at (608) 275-7777 if you'd like to attend or need more information. The Biltmore Hotel is in downtown Los Angeles, 506 S. Grand Ave. The number there is (213) 624-1011 or (800) 245-8673.

Former columnist for TBG promoted

Publisher Stephen L. Crass recently announced that Murray Stringer-Bishoff has been named managing editor of The Monett Times, in Monett, Mo.

Stringer-Bishoff, 37, was news editor at The Times since January 1988 and lives in rural Pierce City, Mo. He replaced Wilma Henbest, who retired Aug. 30; she had served as managing editor since 1975.

Stringer-Bishoff is a native of Pittsburgh, Pa., and grew up in East Moline, Ill. He is a 1972 graduate of United Township High School in East Moline and a 1976 magna cum laude graduate of Augustana College in Rock Island. He is also a member of Phi Beta Kappa.

Hired by fellow high-school student Alan Light for The Buyer's Guide for Comic Fandom (now Comics Buyer's Guide), Stringer-Bishoff wrote the "Now What?" news and review column from 1972-1979, serving as TBG's primary news writer and convention reporter. He began the events calendar as a regular monthly feature in 1979 and continued it through December 1982, when Light sold TBG to Krause Publications. Stringer-Bishoff worked for Jim Steranko as business manager at Prevue Magazine, in Reading, Pa., from 1982 to 1986.

He is married to Leslie Stringer-Bishoff, who is a registered nurse, and attends First Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) in Monett, where he sings in the choir. For the past two years he has also served as secretary of the Ozark Festival Orchestra board of directors and as OFO newsletter editor.

His father-in-law, Seybert Stringer, lives in Purdy, Mo. His parents, Rev. and Mrs. Dale Bishoff, still live in East Moline, Ill.

During the past three-and-a-half years at The Times, Stringer-Bishoff also served as the paper's primary photographer and darkroom technician.

"I am honored to be stepping into such a position of responsibility," Stringer-Bishoff said. "It has been a delight working with Mrs. Henbest these past few years and a tremendous education learning about the community and its people through her.

"Measuring up to The Times' standards has been a great challenge. I look forward to keeping the newspaper a vital part of its readers' lives and chronicling the exciting days ahead," he added.

The Monett Times is published weekdays and covers the Barry Lawrence County territory in southwest Missouri.

COMICS TRADER:
This is an area reserved for the "little guy" who wants no-frills advertising with a price to match. $29.00 buys one of the 12 equal spaces on a Comics Trader page. These spaces can be bought in any multiple of the $29.00 unit. We'll reduce the ad and handle all the production - just design your ad on an 8 x 10" space and sent it with payment. Remember to keep your design simple so your ad will be readable when reduced.

COLLECTOR'S SHOWCASE:
This cost-efficient format in COMIC BUYER'S GUIDE offers you typeset space at a discount. Collector's Showcase units are approximately business card size. You may buy as many units as you want for an ad at a cost of $19.00 per box. All typesetting, photos, art, borders and logos are done by Krause Publications and are included in the price.

CLASSIFIED DISPLAY:
One column ads, 1-3 inches in length, must appear in the classified section. They may be placed under the various classified headings. This gives you the advantage of targeting the collectors you want to reach while standing out among the smaller word ads in classified. Rates and sizes are as follows:

AD SIZE	1 ISSUE	6 ISSUES	13 ISSUES	26 ISSUES	52 ISSUES
A. 1 col. x 1" (1¹³⁄₁₆" x 1")	$14.81	$14.44	$13.70	$12.96	$12.22
B. 1 col x 2" (1¹³⁄₁₆" x 2")	20.98	20.46	19.41	18.36	17.31
C. 1 col. x 3" (1¹³⁄₁₆" x 3")	27.17	26.49	25.13	23.77	22.42

CLASSIFIED WORD ADS:
Our "Classifieds" are thriving and heavily read. Base rates are 20¢ per word with discounts for multiple issues. Please print and punctuate - we are not responsible for errors due to long-hand and illegible copy. For more information see the classified ad form in the classified section.

RETAILER DIRECTORY:
This is a comprehensive listing of comic shops in and around the U.S. $3.00 a week leads buyers to your store by listing your name, address, phone number, and ten words of copy you choose. May be purchased in 26 or 52 week increments only. For more details see the Retailer Directory pages of this issue.

- * 85 or 100-line screen recommended.
- *Page size 9-13/16" x 16" (59 x 96½ picas.)
- *Five 1-13/16" (11 picas) columns per page with one pica gutter between.
- *One color and black $130.00
- *Full color (4 color) $410.00 plus color separation costs) if separations are not provided by advertiser
- *Based on availability.
- *Minimum size color ad 24 inches.

GENERAL INFORMATION

A. PAYMENT: Ads must be accompanied by payment. You may pay with a check, money order, or credit card.

B. CREDIT CARDS: We will accept the following credit cards: VISA, MasterCard, MasterCard II, Barclay Card, Access Card, Eurocard, Diamond Card, Union Card.

C. DEADLINE: For all advertising is noon each Tuesday, unless otherwise stated on deadline card.

D. TERMS: Cash with copy only. All advertisers must provide reference information for the confidential use of the publisher should questions arise.

E. CONTRACT RATES are available for 6, 13, 26, or 52 consecutive issues. Contract rates apply to fulfillment of contract terms. Cancellation of a contract by the advertiser allows the publisher to reinvoice covered ads at the earned rate. This rate card is a part of the advertising contract.

F. MINORS are required to furnish a certificate of responsibility from their parent or guardian before their advertising can be accepted. Write for our convenient form.

G. ERRORS: Typewritten copy is recommended. The publisher is not responsible for errors resulting from longhand or illegible copy, or changes submitted by telephone. The publisher's liability for any error shall not exceed the cost of the space occupied by that error.

H. LAYOUT and design services are provided by Krause Publications for advertisers who do not submit camera-ready copy. Due to the creative and subjective nature of these services, credits will not be allowed for conceptual variations.

I. GRADING: Items offered in any ad must be properly described as to condition, conforming to the standards set forth in Overstreet's "The Comic Book Price Guide". Advertisers may also exercise the option of grading offerings by applying a unique personal system, providing the standards applied are detailed in the ad to avoid confusion.

J. RETURN PRIVILEGE: Except as otherwise specified in any ad, an advertiser must accept the return of any merchandise postmarked within five working days of its receipt by a customer.

K. P.O. BOX ADS are allowed, but permanent home address or place of business of the advertiser must be filed with the publisher before advertisements may be printed.

L. SPECIAL PAGE POSITIONS are available at a premium. Inquire for details.

M. ADVERTISING AGENCIES: There are no agency discounts.

N. CAMERA READY display ads qualify for a 15% discount. Copy must be ready for camera without additional paste-up or film work required. No charge for reductions, enlargements or mail response key change. Comics Trader, Collector's Showcase and classified word ads do not qualify for the camera ready discount.

O. SPACE RESERVATIONS available for camera ready ads only. Must be made prior to ad deadline. Reserved space must be paid for even if ad does not arrive on time.

P. PRE-PRINTED INSERTS are available in Comics Buyer's Guide. Inquire for additional information and technical specifications.

Q. CIRCULATION is throughout the United States and Canada by subscription and single copy sales by agents in shops and other outlets.

R. PROOF OF PUBLICATION: Tear sheets of new display ads are mailed to those advertisers requesting this service. We regret we cannot provide this service to classified advertisers.

S. NOTE: All advertising orders are accepted subject to the terms and provisions of the current rate card. Krause Publications, Inc., reserves the right to decline advertising or suspend advertising privileges for such periods of time as in its discretion it sees fit, for any reason whatsoever, irrespective of the validity of the reasons for such declination or suspension. The forwarding of an order is construed as an acceptance of all rates and conditions under which advertising is at the time sold. The publisher will not be bound by any conditions, printed or otherwise, appearing on any order for advertising space, billing instructions or copy instructions, which conflict with its policies. Advertisers and advertising agencies assume liability for all content (including text representation and illustrations) of advertisements printed, and also assume responsibility for any claims arising therefrom made against the publishers. It is the advertiser's or agency's responsibility to obtain appropriate releases on any item or individual pictured in their advertising. All agreements are subject to strikes, accidents, fire, acts of God, or other contingencies beyond the publisher's control. The publisher reserves the right to edit any advertising copy to conform with its standard advertising policies, and to reject any ad which in its opinion is unethical or objectionable for any reason. This publication does not guarantee and disclaims all knowledge of the right of seller or buyer to contract.
